TOPEKA, Nov. 11.—((By the Associated Press.) Mrs. Mary E. Lease's attack on the State administration, Senator Martin and the fusion policy, has created a greater furore than any political event since the legislative fight of last winter.

Fireman Butler ran away and hid on the pilot of the engine.

One of the robbers fired the engine like an old-timer from Bardwell to Port Jefferson. Here the engineer was instrusted to stop the train at Mayfield trestle. There the robbers sent the engineer ahead of them at the point of the pistol and shotgans to the express-car. Engineer Clarke called to Messenger McNeil to open the door, as commanded by the robbers, and told the messenger not to shoot, as the robbers were using him as a target.

The robbers secured two packages of money, one containing a small amount, the other said to contain $7000. The messenger had hidden the other valuable packages. The incidents of the hold-up were so quiet that the passengers in the train did not know what was taking place ahead. The robbers escaped, but are being pursued with bloodhounds. the pilot of the engine.

Hawaiian Rights Is Puzzling the Diplomats of the Country.

Secretary Gresham's Letter on

President Cleveland Defines His Policy.

The Chairman of the Committee on Por Affairs Not Pleased-Minister Willis's Dilemma-Talk of Armed Force.

By Telegraph to The Times. WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 .- (By the Associated Press.) The State and Navy Department officials are tremely reticent regarding what action is to be taken to carry out the policy announced by Secretary Gresham in the Hawaiian question. Department professes to know nothing of any order issued to carry out the restoration of the Queen.

If the United States Minister has instructions to carry out the policy of the government, he can call upon the government's naval forces to assist him, but in this case that would devolve upon Minister Willis the duty of presenting his credentials to the present government, and then proceeding to take steps to depose it from power This embarrassment is pointed out by persons conversant with diplomatic methods as sufficient to preclude that method of procedure. There are almost as great embar-rassments in anomer possible course which has been suggested, which is that Minister Willis may have been accredited to Queen Liliuokalani her-self, and to the former government. Secretary Gresham argues that the provisional government expires by its own limitation, and that might in-volve the ignoring of the present government, but the present government has been equally recognized by the United States as a government de jure: It is probable the instructions of Minister Willis are to ascertain if the pro-vsional government of Hawaii will con-sent to retire peaceably and make way for the restoration of Queen Liliuokalani. If they refuse to yield thus, Minister Willis will probably wait for further instructions. Minister Willis was due to arrive at Honolulu last Saturday. The United States is now represented at Honolulu by the flagship Philadelphia and the Adams. They are regarded as sufficient to enforce any ontention of this government. So far as is known, no steps have been taken by the Navy Department to reinforce them in anticipation of trouble following the execution of the new policy of the United States, In case more ships are needed, as is regarded by some people as a strong probability, the Yorktown at Callao, the Alliance at La Libertad and the Monterey, Mohican and Ranger at Say Francisco could be concentrated at Honolulu in from two to four weeks

Expressions of opinion by public men ow in Washington upon the Secretary Gresham on the Hawaiian affair are varied. Some emphatically approve of the sentiments expressed in the epistle, and others denounce it with great vehemence. Many politicians and public officials from modesty, courtesy, (cowardice) or policy refuse to talk upon the question at all. Every one of them, however, is discussing the matter, and all are eagerly waiting further developments. Senator Morgan, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, is not at all pleased at the turn of affairs. He said that this government could not re-store the Queen. Two administrations had recognized the provisional govern-ment and accredited it a representative, and these could not be discredited unde

This does not look like a secretly-contrived conspiracy by an American minister and an American commander to overthrow a friendly government. The reports of that meeting in the Honolulu newspapers indicate that the Queen's government fell because of the almost universal detestation and dread in which it was held.

"No, the American people will have but one opinion, if they learn that the cart-off monarchy has been set up again by our armed forces. The State Department under Webster, Marcy, Evarts, Blaine, Freylinghuyen and Bayard held but one tone. Our minis-ters have been instructed to encourage favorable to the United sentiments favorable to the United States and its interests, and to impress upon that government the overwhelming superiority of the interests of the people of the United States in those lalands as compared with the interests of other nations. The ultimate destiny of that government is American annexation."

Representative Oates said that the quesition presented in the report of the Secretary of State was one of law as well as one of fact. CLEVELAND COINCIDES.

The President Accepts Secretary Gresham's

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.-(By the Associated Press.) James Hyde Pratt of Albany is in the city. There is a family relationship between President Cleveland and Pratt, Cleveland's grandfather having been a brother to Pratt's mother. Pratt had a previous acquaintance with Cleveland, having often seen him while he was at Albany, as Governor of New York. Pratt also has family relationship in the Hawaiian Islands, and feels much exercised at the policy towards the islands enunciated in Secretary Gresham's letter. He drove to Woodley this afternoon, and had half an hour's talk with the President on the subject.

As a result, it is learned that Mr.

Cleveland approves thoroughly and wholly Gresham's letter, and all that is contained in it. Pratt lived much in the islands, and does not agree at all with Secretary Gresham's ideas or belief as to the facts of the case. He stated to the President that the Secretary's letter reads to him like the special plea of an advocate for his case His statement that the deposition of the Queen was accomplished by aliens was sufficient to discredit the whole letter to his mind, for he has knowl edge that many of the leaders of revolution are Hawaiian-born, and that the parents of some of them were

Iawaiian-born, through foreign parents, He urged also that the best natives approved the present government, and the disorderly element desired its over-throw. He stated to the President his that the order to re-establish Queen Liliuokalani would make it nec sary to disarm every white man in the islands. He did not believe the Queen could be maintained on the throne a day without the influence of armed forces or the authority of the United States. The present government, he argued, was in possession of all the arms and the power of authority: had its forces well organized and disciplined, and was able to maintain itself angainst any internal disturb-

He then questioned the accuracy of the statement that Minister Stevens and Capt. Wiltse were instrumental in serving the revolutionists, and that the success of the revolution was dependent upon the aid they rendered. They did no more, he asserted, than was au-thorized by the instructions of Secre-tary Bayard to Minister Merrill in July, 1887, for guidance in a similar period of disorder

At this point the President asked Pratt whether he thought he had as the subject as the President himself,

The President closed the interview by saying that he had absolute faith in the accuracy of all conclusions drawn by Secretary Gresham, and that Stevens and Capt. Wiltse committed an act of usurpation, and had done a wrong to a helpless power, which it was the duty of the United States to undo.

Pratt consented to relate the substance of his interview with President Cleveland for publication by the Asso-Hawalis. Consul Wilder, when asked to express an opinion to the Associated Press, declined until he had carefully studied Secretary Gresham's communication. He did say, however, that Secretary Gresham is laboring under a misapprehension of facts, and is evidently not aware of the gravity of the situation on the islands.

Consul Wilder was disagreeably surprised today, when he presented a draft drawn on the provisional government at the bank, and the bank refused to honor it. It was explained to him by the bank officials that they did not know what might happen at Honolulu when the contents of Secretary Gresham's letter became known there, and they did not care to take the risk.

Heretofore drafts on the provisional government have been paid without question. It is also stated here that the merchants are uneasy about the situation, and that they are making no shipments of freight to Honolulu on the Monowai, which leaves here on next Thursday. They are waiting to see what is going to happen.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(By the Associated Press.) The Treasury Department today made a ruling adhering to the present practice of refusing to allow collectors of customs to indorse certificates issued by Chinese consuls in the United States to Chinese merchants and others entitled to return here, so as to facilitate their entry on arrival.

The request for the resumption of this practice, which was suspended by the department some time ago, came to the Treasury Department recently through the State Department from the Chinese Minister. The Treasury Department replied to the representations made by the Minister that its collectors of customs were instructed that, in all cases where they consider the persons holding the certificates to be bona fide merchants, they are not to place any obstruction in the way of their admission, but it is not considered advisable to return to the old practice, as it led to abuses. Genuine Building Boom in Progress-Man

Pomona has a building boom on a present in the way of erecting nice residences. At no time since Pomona became a town have so many residences been put up. The main difference became a town have so many residences been put up. The main difference between this epidemic of building and others is that this time the residences are much handsomer than usual. While the prevailing low price of lumber has a good deal to do with the building boom, this is not the only cause. More new residents have come in than at any other season, and the inquiries for real estate are much more frequent. Visitors to California are beginning to find out that the Pomona Valley is one of the lovellest and calmest in the State, and this fact brings in many people who come on a visit only, but afterward decide to remain permanently. In this connection, for instance, a violent sand storm was raging on all sides of the city and valley yesterday, but in this place the air was as still and calm as is usually the case. Not a particle of wind or sand was circulating on our streets. This fact alone is a constant source of pride to the average Pomonan. POMONA BREVITIES.

The ordinance, it is stated, will cause a good deal of "kicking," not only from the cows and hogs, but from the residents. It is claimed that there are many people in the city who own their town property and are not able to put cows out on large tracts of land to kick up their heels at pleasure. The law would work a hardship on them, but, at the same time, when a cow is kept in a pen about twenty feet square, it becomes a great nuisance, which must, for the health of the city, be abated.

The orange-growers are somewhat di-vided on the question as to whether oranges ought to be brushed and washed when smutty or dirty. Some oranges ought to be brushed and washed when smutty or dirty. Some of the prosperous growers say that to brush or wash an orange breaks the oil cells, and renders the orange unfit for shipment. Returns from orange-shippers last season show that dusty oranges (unwashed) brought bigger prices than large, fine-looking oranges that had been washed and brushed. The unwashed orange was sound when it reached its destination in the East, while those that were brushed were considerably damaged.

Considerable discussion has been engaged in lately as to whether the Southern Pacific will build its line to Chino in case the electric company begins work on its line to that place. The two lines would not conflict in any way to amount to anything, as the Southern Pacific wants to shorten its line to Chino for the sugar output and for a line to Riveraide. The fares of the people of Chino in coming to Pomona would all go to the electric company, but that would cut no figure in the building of the road.

But the alleged mice had almost obliterated the letters by nibbling around them. It was a queer way for mice to behave, to say the least of it. "In fact, we felt confident that the thing was a rank fraud. So we got a detective of the secret service to look the matter up. He investigated the case fully, and, much to our surprise, reported that it was all right—in short, that the note had been submitted for redemption in good faith. The case is interesting chiefly as an illustration of the way in which an appearance of fraud may sometimes mislead.

"The other case was that of a man who wandered into the treasury at the time of the G.A.R. convention here. He handed me a note which was a most peculiar looking wreck. I said to him: "Why, it looks as if a railway train had run over it!"

Statistics of Suicides.

Statistics of Suicides.

(Paris Letter to the London Telegraph.) The Minister of Justice has just published some statistics of suicides which are not without interest. They show an average of 4 per cent. of males under 20 years of age, and of 32 per cent. for men over 60. Of suicides of females, on the other hand, 8 per cent. were those of girls under 20, while there were not more than 27 per cent. for women over 60 years of age. Twenty-six per cent. of the suicides were attributed to mental derangement, and 20 to physical suffering. Drunkenness is held responsible for 12 per cent. and love affairs for 4. Most of the men had recourse to the rope, while the women preferred death by drowning, though some tooks poison, which seems to be altogether eschewed by the sterner sex. Strangely enough, suicides are far more frequent in the spring and summer than during the colder months, which leads to the inference that want, which is much more prevalent in the winter months than in the other seasons, is not the usual cause of the sad determinations to be rid of life.

AGAINST THE PUGS.

The Anti-prize-fight Crusade Has Reached New Orleans. NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 11.—(By the Associated Press.) Atty-Gen. Cunning filed an application for an injunction today to prevent the Olympic Club from giving the Bowen-Abbott glove contest on November 15, as advertised, and the injunction was granted.

The Attorney-General also filed a petition praying that the charter of the club be forfeited on the ground that it has violated the law in holding prize-fights. The club has set aside $5000 to fight the matter.

A DWARF'S DISADVANTAGES.

Episodes in the Life of "Bebe," Dwarf of the King of Poland.

(St. Nicholas:) The Russian Empress who also was very fond of dwarfs, took a great funcy to Bebe when she saw him at Luneville, and at the end of a visit was resulted to Standalow. a great fancy to Bebe when she saw him at Luneville, and at the end of a visit she was paying to Stanislaus, she attempted to carry off her little hero without saying "by your leave" to either him or the King. Just before quitting the palace one of her maids of honor snatched up the dwarf and attempted to stuff him into a pocket of her sable coat; but Bebe, who was highly indignant at such treatment, called out at the top of his tiny lungs, "Sweetheart! Sweetheart!" till at last the wee voice was heard, and he was rescued more dead than alive.

Soon after this, Stanislaus started off on a trip to Versailles to visit the Queen, his daughter, taking his little friend with him. Everywhere they went Bebe attracted a great deal of attention, and everywhere the ladies smothered him with kisses and bonbons.

One day a celebrated beauty belong ing to King Louis's court snatched hin up and tried to place him on her knee but Bebe, whose memory seemed t but Bebe, whose memory seemed to have increased faster than his inches, called out "Sweetheart! Sweetheart! here's another beautiful lady trying to put me in her pocket!" And Kin Louis, who had heard the story of th

Louis, who had heard the story of the Russian Empress, was so much amused and so well pleased with the dwarf that he ordered a beautiful little house to be constructed for him.

This small building was made complete in every particular, and it was placed on wheels, so that it could be moved from place to place. The rooms were all finished in white and gilt, with parquet floors, just like those in the big palace at Versailles, and they were titted with furniture duly suited to Bebe's size. In this tiny mansion had a little greyhound about as big as a squirrel, and a pair of turtle dove the size of canary birds.

The Hypnotizing Eye. The latest terror of society is the peripatetic hypnotizer, who, according to the European newspapers, seems to be creating widespread consternation in England and on the continent. In London recently, a victim of hypotism applied to a police magistrate for a summons against a man whom he charged with having caused him to reveal his confidential family affairs at a public house bar. Of course, his application was refused, since it is obvious that neither theft, fraud, imposition, libel nor assault could be accepted as the proper designation of such an incident. On the continent the danger appears to be of a still more serious nature. A man with fascinating eyes is reported as haunting the Parasian omnibuses, and whenever he feasts his eyes on a good-lock. peripatetic hypnotizer, who, according more serious nature. A man with fascinating eyes is reported as haunting the Parasian omnibuses, and whenever he feasts his eyes on a good-looking young woman, she immediately falls asteep. So numerous are the charges of this character against him that the police are now straining every nerve to capture him. But it is difficult to say what can be done with him when he is secured. He can scarcely be guillotined, and to place such an offender in confinement would only be to invite him for try his powers on his jailers. He might even succeed in sending to sleep the judge and fary before whom he was brought for trial. If there is really anything in this new form of the evil eye, it may become a source of moral danger and crime, and the law of all civilized countries will have, to be amended in such a manner as to grapple with it. In the meantime, it may serve as a fertile field for authors of comic operas and screaming farces. and screaming farces.

Irish Agriculture.

(London Graphic:) During the past year 5580 acres of Irish land previously in farming have gone out of cultivation. The land laid down to grass is on the increase in area, but the cereal crops, and also woods and plantations, cover less ground than formerly. As much of the bogland might be bound together by planting the right sort of trees, and so made not only safe but profitable, the decline in plantations is especially to be regretted. On the other side of the account we have an increase of 8550 in the number of horses and 38, 893 in the pigs, which would be very encouraging but for the diminishing numbers of both sheep and cattle. The Irish government collects certain statistics, rather unwisely neglected here, and from these we learn that 1,031,928 turkeys, 2,177,227 geese, 2,909,252 ducks and 9,978,278 ordinary fowls are kept on Irish farms.

On Wednesday morning attention will be directed principally to the primary and international work. At 11:15 a.m. Rev. A. W. Rider will give a Normal outline study on Timothy II. 2-15, of special value to all Sunday-school teachers, in the afternoon Mrs. F. J. Cressey will read a paper on "Graduating Exercises in Primary Work." and "Primary Work in the Light of the New Education" will be treated by Mrs. H. W. Brodtbeck. The closing session, Wednesday evening, will be a Sunday-school mass-meeting, the schools of Pasadena attending in a body. A temperance chalk talk will be given by Mrs. Ellen A. D. Blair, the national chalk talker of the W.C.T.U., to be followed by "Random Shots," from a number of able speakers.

Thursday morning, following the convention, the delegates will join in a grand excursion and picnic to Rubic THE WATER DEAL.

THE WATER DEAL.

Another Conference Between the Cour and Mr. Peirce.
Committeemen Munson, Campbell and Innes of the Water Supply Committee of the City Council, together with City Engineer Dockweller, met with Messrs. S. H. Mott and R. B. F. Peirce yesterday in response to an in-vitation from the last named gentleman, for the purpose of further considering the water deal.

The talk was a somewhat extended one, and, in fact, lasted so long that the gentlemen had to take a recess for A statement showing pieces of property belonging to the company so what more in detail than was show what more in detail than was shown by the list which was published in The Times several weeks ago, was handed to the committeemen, but when they asked if this was for them to-keep the representative of the company replied that it was not yet completed. The conversation was largely on what the company had to sell, rather than on the price at which it would sell it. But little was said as to a definite figure, but an impression was gained from the conference that the repretatives of the company would be willing to accept a price less than $3,300,000, which sum was what they offered the plant for a few weeks ago.

It is the intention of Messrs. Potter & West to make this tract a beautiful home section. Aside from the natural advantages of good soil and abundance of shade, the owners propose to require a certain class of houses, and are prepared to submit a varied assortment of plans to buyers. Thirty-sixth sidewalked, and the lots on this street are ffered for sale at $500 each. Several fine houses are soon to be erected on this street and no lots are sold until the intentions of the buyers are fully known to the entire satisfaction of the owners. In anticipation of the "boom times" in Coming.

In anticipation of the "boom times" in Southern California real estatae, which now seems to be inevitable, dealers and speculators from all around the circle are flocking into Los Angeles as the center of interest, and getting themselves ready to take at its flood the golden tide which leads to eager investment, abundant money, quick sales and big profits. No day passes now without the arrival of some big operator from abroad, and new shingles are as plentiful as clothing-store band-wagons. One of the latest is that of Nance, Fugard & Co., which appears at No. 200 West Third street. The Mr. Nance of the firm is the well-known banker and land-owner of Perris. George W. Fugard has been a large operator in real estate and mines in Colorado and Old Mexico. The firm will make a specialty of Perris and Allesandro lands, but will buy and sell almost anything else in which there is money.

FOR SALE-Country Property.

A forty-acre improved property in the Cahuenga foothills, close to Sunset boulevard, and commanding an unrivaled view.

The soil is a rich loam, mixed with pulverized granite, the washing of the adjoining hills, and it is the best for lemon culture to be found in the State of California.

The climate of these foothills is fa-of California.

The climate of these foothills is famous for combining all the excellences that are characteristic of our Italy, and without any of the drawbacks that are sometimes found in less-favored locations.

without any sometimes found in less-favored locations.

One most important factor is that the location offered is absolutely frostless, according to experience.

Improvements.—There is a neat, comfortable, six-roomed residence, with all the necessary outbuildings, large barn, stable, shade trees and fruit trees of various kinds, giving more than a sufficient supply of delicious fruit for table use. The larger part of the ranch is at present under cultivation for early vegetables, which are shipped to San Brancisco, and afford an excellent, steady income. vegetables, which are shipped to San Francisco, and afford an excellent, steady income Water.—There is an abundant and never-failing supply from two sources and a storage reservoir of brick and cement just completed, holding 85,000 gallons.

Price.—Unimproved land in the immediate vicinity has been selling lately at $400 per acre, but I offer this forty acres, with all haprovemen's, for $12,500, Will give time on part of the purchase money, at interest, if desired. This offer holds good for a few days only. The property is unincumbered and title perfect.

This is a chance such as seldom occurs. Think it over.

its many-times-postponed meeting yes-terday at the Rock Island offices, and took formal action on the Union Pacific's notice of withdrawal from the agreement. Mr. Herr, the local agent for the Union Pacific, announced that so far as he knew his company had no intention of disturbing the rate situa tion by leaving the association, and the meeting adjourned. While the agents of other lines would like to think that the Union Pacific will not disturb the present serenity, they have rankling doubts about it. The fact that the Union Pacific will again pay commis-sions to others than Southern Pacific agents in Southern California, will compel competing lines to do likewise. As the resolution to abolish com-missions to brokers, hotel-men and

As the resolution to abolish commissions to brokers, hotel-men and others, was the backbone of the rate agreement, signed by the members of the association, it looks as though the compact is again to be dissolved. If there were any passengers to practice on, a rate-war could easily be stirred up just now; but it looks as though nobody intends to go East for the next six months or so.

Regarding the situation in San Francisco, the Chronicle of Saturday, said: "There is still uncertainty and confusino in local railroad circles regarding transcontinental passenger business. No attempt has yet been made to meet the rates made by the Canadian Pacific. It is rather extraordinary that Chicago can be reached by an all-rail route via Portland for $52, while the fare direct is $53.40. From Portland to St. Paul the fare still stands at $25 via either the Canadian Pacific, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific or Great Northern. From St. Paul to Chicago the fare is $7, while from this city to Portland the rate is $20, which makes a total of $52. ORE UNION PACIFIC RECEIVERS. NEW YORK, Nov. 11 .- (By the Asclated Press.) It is announced that has been authoritatively decided on the part of the government to account today to appoint J. W. Doane of Chicago and Frederick K. Coudert of New York to be associate receivers of the Union Pacific. This will give the of the Union Pacific at the instance of the Union Pacific at the instance of the Union Pacific at the instance of the Operating department, and Receiver Clark will be placed in charge of the operating department, and Receiver Mink of the account department. It is understood that additional receivers are likely to be appointed to represent the other security holders of the Union Pacific.

OMAHA (Neb..) Nov. 11.—(By the Associated Press.) A telegram from New York regarding the probability of the appointment of two more receivers for the Union Pacific at the instance of the government, was shown to John C. Cowin, who is retained to glook after the interests of the Union Pacific affairs. Gen. Cowin said: "An application will Gen. Cowin said: "An application will be made to Judge Dundy in the very near future on behalf of the govern-ment for 'he additional receivers, and such action will undoubtedly meet with no opposition." ANOTHER CANADIAN PACIFIC CUT. CHICAGO, Nov. 11.-(By the Asso ciated Press.) It is reported that the Canadian Pacific will put into effect a cut of about 40 per cent, on the exist-ing rates between San Francisco and Eastern points. As the connections of the Canadian Pacific have received no

otice of the reduction, the cut is pro

ably an arbitrary rate between Portland and San Francisco. SCRAP HEAP.

General Freight Agent Hynes of the Southern California road yesterday received a photograph of the special train of seventeen cars, which left North Ontario on the 4th inst. for the East, by way of the Santa Fe route. The train was made up of nine carloads of dried fruit and eight carloads of canned fruit, packed at Ontario, and shipped by one firm. The cars were decorated with palm leaves and flowers, and the population of North Ontario turned out to see it depart and get their pictures taken with it. The artistic value of the photograph is enhanced by the lifelike presentment of Mr. Hynes in the foreground.

H. G. Thompson, general passenger agent of the Santa Fe's lines in Southern California, returned yesterday from San Francisco, where he conferred with Southern Pacific officials regarding rates. He reports that business is exceedingly dull in the city, and that on one day he was there only twelve Eastern tickets were sold. Nothing definite regarding transcontinental rates was determined. It is understood that the Santa Fe is favoring a lower rate, but the Southern Pacific is averse to it on account of the extreme dullness of the times.

By the sale of the Chesapeake and Ohio Scuthwestern to the Louisville and Nashville and Illinois Central, C. P. Huntington will limit his railroad interests to the Southern Pacific. He receives $6,000,000 in ten-year bonds for the road. The purchase will largely benefit the Louisville and Nashville, giving it a monopoly of all the rails in Kentucky between the Tennessee River and Lexington, besides extremely valuable terminals in Memphis. It gives the Illinois Central a route to St. Louis, via Memphis, its present line running some distance east of Memphis.

NOTICE. To whom it may concern: I take pleasure in recommending to the public Prof. Camp-clans of No. 559 South Broadway. Los An-geles. Cal., and will state in a few words my experience with hip. experience with him.

My wife had an old Pleyel piano, neglected for more thantwenty years. I was about to buy a new one, "experts" having declared that the piano was too far gone for repairs. Prof. Campelans, after thoroughly examining the instrument, assured me that he could rebuild it and make it as good as new. I accepted the professor's proposition, having been assured by my friends that he was a man of exceptional ability in his line of business. The professor went to work, fulfilling his promise to the letter; the instrument now being as good as new.

Any inquirers as to his efficiency are welcome to verify my statements, by calling at my home at Ramona. Cal.

It gives me pleasure to certify that. Prof. Campelans is a gentleman thoroughly the master of his trade, moderate in his charges, a man of responsibility and a planist of the highest order.

As a plano repairer he is, my wife coinciding with me, simply unsurpassed.

A WOMAN'S HEART

TWELFTH YEAR.

Won by Wagner from von Bulow.

Romantic History of Wagner's Widow, Ill in Bayreuth.

Her Queer Ancestry, Fickle Heart, Notable Career.

A Strange Story Which Reveals the Eccentricities of Two Great Masters of Music-A Woman of Genius

BAYRELTH, Nov. 1.—Here in this queer, quantit, old town there has been lying at the point of death a woman who, in her way, has been not only the most clever in her own country, but, for that matter, one of the most gifted in all Europe, whose career has been more remarkable than that of most becomes of fection. Indeed, the average be fiction. Indeed, the average heroine of fiction would shine in a very dull way beside this woman who is now not so many strides from the door of

Wagner, the wife of the great com-poser, the person though, but "a wo-man." has more masculinity in her mental make-up than most men, and the one who so yoked the genius of her last husband to solid business methods that he succeeded when even his immense talent alone would not have given him that position which he won

Moreover, this woman was, prior to her marriage to Wagner, the wife of Hans von Bulow, the famous pianist and kapel-meister to the King of Bavaria. Bulow also owed much of his success to the genius for affairs and hard commercial sense of this woman.

An odd character is, or, rather, was, Frau Cosina Wagner, who now lies here sorely broken with her striking career behind her and her life near its close. This old town, which is Wagnerian to its finger-tims if the expression may be It is finger-tips, if the expression may be allowed, is very proud of this relict of the man, who was its chief citizen and genius, and many stories you may hear of the ways of the remarkable woman from the lips of gossipy fraus and frauleins.

from the lips of gossipy fraus and frauleins.

I saw this woman just before paralysis attacked her in early April, and but one impression could be gained, even after a short interview with her, and that would be that Wagner was right when he said that she was the most intellectual woman in Germany. You would also get the impression that she is one of the homliest women to be found anywhere. Tall: she is divinely tall, as the poet puts it, but by no means divinely fair. She would stand at least an inch taller than the last and greatest of her husbands. Wagner.

In her old age she is spare and guant of figure, and dreeses in a way that accentuates the effect of oddness, and, for that matter, ugliness, that is taken by superficial or cursory glances at her.

But these are but appendages. You pass the drees, you pass the long, scrawny neck, and sailow face, and you meet the woman's eyes with your own, and mentally you say to yourself: "Here lies the secret of this woman's power over even great men."

Heavy, shaggy eyebrows, almost meet below a forehead high, square and masculine. From its base protrudes a nose long and curved as a hawk's beak, and, somehow, you come at once to the conclusion that this, as well as her phenomenal business instinct came her phenomenal business instinct came down to her honestly from her German-Jewish forefathers, the Bethmans, of Frankfort-on-the-Main. But it is her down to her honestly from her GermanJewish forefathers, the Bethmans, of Frankfort-on-the-Main. But it is her eyes that attract your attention. You look into the windows of a woman's soul through them. Deep set, the eyes are but phenomenally bright and piercing. Even now, when well past three score years of age, those eyes of Mme. Wagner will leave a deep impression upon you, whether you will it so or not. Not that they are fascinating in the sense that dreamy or dove-like eyes are said by poets to be. There is power in them, and there is intellect shining out through them. As you observe them you can understand why Wagner said she was the most intellectual woman in all Europe. You may not understand, but you may shrewdly guess from them the character of those underlying currents in this make-up that have in a way controlled her in her eventful life.

We are apt in these days of the Philistine to flout the theory that our lives are largely governed by hereditary instincts. We have come to hold sometimes that the child of vicious parents, born in the atmosphere of a brothel, may become a great moral reformer, and so he or she may. But some of us will perhaps continue to hold that hereditary traits, like taints of the same kind, may be transmitted. We may go further and hold that they may be exaggerated in the third and fourth generations and produce the very subject of this sketch in ample evidence to clinch the argument. In order to more clearly understand the career of this woman, now passing the last days of her life in the town that Wagner loved, it may be necessary to take a brief birdseye view, as it were, of her forbears.

In the first place she came of a race on both sides that never allowed conventional rules to interfere in their love matters. Frau Wagner followed the family will.

Her grandmother was a Bethman of the family of Frankfort bankers and brokers before referred to, and she was to her bestowal of herself and her money upon a broken French refugee. The fair widow seemed to submit, even when her relatives, in order to submit, even when her relatives, in order to make the submit of the particular and thrown into prison.

It was a fatal move was confined. She went through some sort of a marber prison where her lover was confined. She went through some sort of a marber prison where her lover was confined. She went through some sort of a marber prison where her lover was confined. She went through some sort of a marber of the prison of her prison of freckled, as he was great in the realm of music, had some sort of fascination for women of brains as well as beauty, and who himself said, with a vanity all his own, that he entered the priesthood his own, that he entered the priesthood to escape women.

The Comptesse de Ajoult ran away and lived with him at Rome and Weimar, but eventually broke with him, for she was freighted with vanity as heavily as the great planist himself.

One of his daughters by this affair was named Blaudine, and was a beautiful woman, who afterward married the French statesman, Emile Ollivier. The other is the subject of this sketch. This latter daughter was expected to be an artist. Instead, she was a man of business, in purpose and effect. She had a peculiar make-up. She had the soul of an artist, as had her father, Liszt, and at the same time she had the method and kindness of the Frankfort bankers, from whom she sprung. And, like her mother and grandmother, she was by nature erratic.

spring. And, like the mother arrandmother, she was by nature erratic.

She had been the wife of Hans Von Bulow for years, and had borne him four children, when Wagner crossed their path. The great German composer came to Munich upon the invitation of King Ludwig of Bavaria, and discovered in this woman, as he believed, a counterpart of himself. At any rate, he believed he had found an admirer such as he deserved, and, great as he was and egotistical as most great men are, consciously or otherwise, he could love. Von Bulow's wife became his affinity. Before knowing him at all she had named the four children of Von Bulow after the heroines of Wagner's operas, respectively, Sente Fligaheth. Eva and Isolde.

nes of Wagner's operas, respectively, Senta, Elizabeth, Eva and Isolde. Senta, Elizabeth, Eva and Isolde.
She acted as private secretary to Wagner, and finally it dawned upon Von Bulow that his own was no longer his own, that his wife lived for Wagner and not for himself. Then, with placid kindness that it is hard for us who are not men of genius to understand, Von Bulow consented to sur-render his wife to his friend. He even render his wife to his friend. He even gave his assistance in the divorce proceedings, that they might go through without freiction. There is a letter that is published, openly now, that was written by Wagner to a friend and signed by himself and the ex-wife of his friend, It is a queer reading, when you consider it from our ordinary standpoint of matters social. It rans this way:

this way:
"You will no doubt be angry with me when you hear that I am to marry me when you hear that I am to become

"You will no doubt be angry with me when you hear that I am to marry Von Bulow's wife, who is to become a convert in order to be divorced.

"We have the honor to announce our marriage, which took place on the 25th of August of this year 1870, at the Protestant Church of Lucerne.

RICHARD WAGNER,

"COSINA WAGNER, nee Liszt.

Wagner did not stop at taking Von Bulow's wife. He took all his children as well and what is more, he cared for them as though they had been his own. There is another characteristic letter extant written by Wagner, and dealing with this matter.

Writing from Lucerne he said:

"My house is full of children, the children of my wife; but besides there blooms for me a splendid son, strong and beautiful, whome I have dared to call Seigfried Richard Wagner. Now think what I must feel when this happiness has at last fallen to my share;

piness has at last fallen to my share am 57 years old.
"RICHARD WAGNER."

piness has at last fallen to my share; I am 57 years old.

Truly wonderful are the ways of men of genius. Among prosaic men shooting irons would be flying over the appropriation of one man's wife and children by another man. Here, Von Bulow, sees his wife and family taken, smiles not only philosophically, but almost blesses his lost consort and her last lover. In fact he did appear at their wedding and gave them his blessiz.

The son whom Wagner named after himself, and one of his operas has been the right hand of Mme. Wagner in her decliming years. Since Wagner's death and up to the time that paralysis came upon her Cousina Wagner herself was the moving power in the Baryeuth festivals that were means of exploiting Wagner's works. This theater was the outgrowth of an idea of Wagner himself, but it was the executive ability of his wife and her power over her father, Liszt, whose influence was great, that made the scheme successful. It was she who made the two great musiclans friends and allies and directed their different sorts of genius into channels that brought mony as well as fame to them both.

It is remarkable how the woman clings to the memory of Wagner and how utterly she seems to have fogotten her first husband, who, if not cast in so great a mold as the German composer, was none the less a genius of a very high a young widow at the time the French revolution scattered the French nobility before it like chaff before an autumn wind. Among these was a Compte de Flahauit, who wandered to Frankfort, saw the fair widow, conquered and was conquered. The widow had in her own right a fortune of £130,000, and it was right a fortune of £130,000, and it was right a fortune of £130,000, and it was from which she suffers that she replied warmly to a visitor who ventured to all comparation she will ever be known as luminously as Wagner himself. They cannot be considered apart. He would not have gained the leight he did but for her, and her desire to disclaim all credit is but another proof of this. She has been a truly great woman, and is the wreck of one that complea admiration.

Miss Rose H. Hardenberg of Los Angeles spoke on the work of the primary grade, and advocated a careful may grade, and advoc fell in love with an English girl of high degree and her parents spurned him. He was but a musician. This incident colored his whole life. Hayden married a shrew, who made his whole career unhappy. Chopin was devoted to George Sand, who wearied of him in the end because of his ill health, and who took up with Abbe Liszt, who by a sort of righteous judgment afterwards deserted her as above told for the mother of Cosina Wagner. Chopin died two years later. Schubert was but little more fortunate for he fell in love with the daughter of Count Esterhazy, the Austrian statesman. The girl was the Austrian statesman. The girl was not worth it, but Schubert cherished his love for her all his life long, and his

with the daughter of Count Esternasy, the Austrian statesman. The girl was not worth it, but Schubert cherished his love for her all his life long, and his best work was dedicated to her.

The love affairs of Franz Liszt have been before referred to, and the great composer, Rossini, in a way, was even more famous for his love ventures. So after following up this line of argument it is not hard to see by putting on a certain fort of spectacles why Wagner took away his friend's wife or why the friend should have viewed the proceedings with complacency bordering on aproval, as Von Bulow did.

But the republic of genius is wide and its laws are fiexible to a degree that we who live in more prosaic and rigidly marked and bounded territories may not altogether understand. Still it is not work while to throw stones at windows of this woman who lies here in Bayreuth stricken in body and in years. To some extent she has been the creature of the condition and the time into which she was born. Her great devoton to her last husband may well atone for many things. She lived in his work, and, ambitious, gave all her intellect to him. Her shining faith as one Wagnerian devotee has put it in the dead master's delification and in her own reunion with him is in itself touching.

Even today, after the lapse of many years, when she is looking forward to a speedy meeting with the one men who entered into her life so completely; when she is bent and broken it is not hard to see how it was necessary to direct the genius of Wagner in the proper-way, and to bring to fruition his hopes to create for the worl-I a new standard in lyric music.

You cannot test the virtue of human nature as you can milk. You cannot weigh the bad or good in man or woman as you do sugar. You cannot measure with a carpenter's rule the height and depth of human will or I man weakness, nor can you test in common scales the weight or quality of a human conscience. You can throw a stone and utter wise sayings. But see Cosina Wagner as I did, here in Bayreuth, not

All his energies went to the instruction of others, leaving none for his own purposes. He would take callow youths can be and take callow youths of the charge of robbery, the men were bound over to answer for trial in the Superior Court, with bail fixed at $2000 in each instance. It was a clear case from beginning to end, no attorney being employed by the defendants, nor any testimony offered in their behalf.

Patrick Carr, the complaining witness, stated that he had been out with the men very late Thursday night. They stuck close to him all the while, and did not leave him until all three took a final drink, in a saloon at the corner of First and Alameda streets, at about 5 o'clock in the morning. He had then gone directly home to No. 220 Geary street. A disturbance outside called him to the door a few moments afterward. Upon stepping into the yard

From all appearances, it seems that in the arrest of Olsen and McDonald two of the most accomplished toughs in the country have been out of the way, for the present, at least.

Church Work Meetings. The regular all-day meeting of the Church Work, Ladies' Ald and Missionary societies of the First Congregational Church, was held Tuesday in the par-lors of the church. A goodly number of ladies were present. These meet-ings, which are held the first Tuesday lings, which are held the first Tuesday of every month, are not only profitable, but decidedly pleasant, the ladies generally bringing luncheon and spending a social hour at noon, on something even more substantial than the "feast of reason and flow of soul." A delightful luncheon was spread Tuesday, in honor of Mrs. Lucy More, who is about leaving Los Angeles to make her home in the country. Resolutions were tead, expressing the deep regret of her sister workers at losing so efficient and useful a member from among them, and a rising vote of thanks was given her for her faithfulness. Mrs. More resigned the presidency of the Church Work society, and Mrs. H. A. Mills was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy.

It has been told me, by those in a position to know—and I can easily be-lieve it—that at 19 months of age he wept because his grandmother would not allow him to feed her with a spoon; and that at 3½ he was fished, in an exhausted condition, out of the water-butt, whither he had climbed for the purpose of teaching a frog how to

Two years later he got his left eye permanently injured, showing the cat how to carry kittens without hurting them; and about the same period was dangerously stung by a bee, while conveying it from a flower, where, as it seemed to him, its was only wasting time, to one more rich in honeymaking properties.

His desire was always to help others. He would spend whole mornings explaining to elderly hens how to hatch eggs, and give an afternoon's black-berrying in order to sit at home and crack nuts for his pet squirrel. Before he was 7 he would argue with his mother upon the management of chil-dren, and reprove his father for the way he was bringing him up.

As a child nothing afforded him greater delight than "minding" other children—or them less. He would take this harrassing duty upon himself enthrely of his own accord, and without hope of reward or gratitude. It was immaterial to him whether the other children were older than himself or younger, stronger or weaker; whenever and wherever he found them he set to work to "mind" them. Once, during a school treat, piteous cries were heard coming from a distant part of the wood, and, upon search being made, he was discovered prone upon the ground, with a cousin of his, twice his own weight, sitting upon him and steadily whacking him. Having rescued him, the teacher said:

"Why didn't you keep with the little bys? What were you doing along with him?"

"Please, sir," he answered, "I was He would have "minded" Noah if he ad got hold of him.

He was a good-natured lad; and at chool he was always willing for the whole class to copy from his slate; indeed, he would urge them to do so. He meant it kindly, but inasmuch as his answers were invariably quite wrong—with a distinctive and inimitable wrongness, peculiar to himself—the result to his followers, from a labor-saving point of view, proved eminently unsatisfactory; and with the shallowness of youth that, ignoring inctives, judges by results, they would wait for him outside and punch him. All his energies went to the instruction of others, leaving none for his own wrong-with a distinctive and inimi-gument with the umpire, as to whether he was in or out.

He has been known, during a stormy channel passage, to rush excitedly upon the bridge, in order to inform the captain that he had "just seen a light about two miles away to the left;" and, if he is on the top of an omnibus, he generally sits beside the driver and points out to him the various obstacles likely to impede their progress.

It was in a bus that my own personal acquaintance with him began. I was sitting behind two young ladies, when the conductor came up to collect fares. One of them handed him a sixpence, telling him to take them to Piccadilly Circus, which was twopence.

"No," said the other lady to her friend, handing the man a shilling." I owe you sixpence; you give me fourpence, and I'll pay for the two."

The conductor took the shilling, punched two twopenny tickets, and

The conductor took the shilling, punched two twopenny tickets, and then stood trying to think it out.
"That's right," said the lady who had spoken last. "Give my friend fourpence"—the conductor did so. "Now, you give that fourpence to me"—the friend handed it to her—"and you," she concluded to the conductor, "give me eightpence. Then we shall all be right." The conductor doled out to her the

The conductor doled out to her the eightpence—the sixpence he had taken from the first lady, with a penny and two ha pennies out of his own bag—distrustfully, and retired, muttering something about his duties not including those of a lightning calculator.

"Now," said the elder lady to the younger, "I owe you a shilling."

I deemed the incident closed, when suddenly a florid gentleman on the opposite seat called out in stentorian tones.

"Hi! conductor, you've cheated these tones.

"Hi! conductor, you've cheated these ladies out of fourpence."

"Yo's cheated 'oo out o' fourpence?" replied the indignant conductor from the top of the steps. "It was a twopenny fare."

"Two twopences don't make eightpence," retorted the florid gentleman, hotly. "How much did you give the fellow?" he asked, addressing the first of the young ladies.

"I gave him sixpence," replied the lady, examining her purse, "and I gave you fourpence, you know," she added, addressing her companion.

"That's a dear two pen'oth," chimed a common-looking on the seat behind.

"Oh, that's impossible, dear," returned the other, "because I owed you sixpence to begin with."

"But I did," persisted the first lady.

"You gave me a shilling," said the conductor who had returned, pointing an accusing finger at the elder of the ladies.

The elder lady nodded.

ladies.
The elder lady nodded.
"And I gaye you a sixpence and two pennies, didn't 1?"
The lady admitted it.
"An' I gave 'er," pointing toward the younger lady, "fourpence, didn't 1?"
"Which I gave you, you know, dear," remarked the younger lady.
"Blow me if it ain't me as 'as been cheated out of the fourpence," cried the conductor.

"But," said the florid sentleman, "the other lady gave you sixpence."
"Which I gave to 'er," replied the conductor, again pointing the finger of accusation at the elder lady "You can search my bag if yer like. I ain't got a bloomin' sixpence on me."

By this time everybody had forgotten what they had done, and contradicted themselve and one another. The florid man took it upon himself to put everybody right, with the result that before Piccadilly Circus was reached three passengers had threatened to report the conductor for unbecoming language. The conductor had called a policeman, and taken the names and addresses of the two ladies, intending to sue them for the fourpence (which they wanted to pay, but which the florid man would not allow them to.) The younger ladyhad become convinced that the elder lady was in tears.
The florid gentleman and myself con-had become convinced that the elder lady had meant to cheat her, and the elder lady was in tears.

The florid gentleman and myself continued in the bus to Charing Cross station. At the booking-office window it transpired that we were bound for the same suburb, and we journeyed down together. He talked about the four-pence all the way.

At my gate we shook hands, and he was good enough to express delight at the discovery that we were near neighbors. What attracted him to myself I failed to innerstand, for he had bored me chariferably, and I had, to the best of my ability, snubbed him. Subsequently I learned that it was a peculiarity of his to be charmed with anyone who did not openly insult him. Three days afterward he burst into my study, unannounced—he appeared to regard himself as my tear. my study, unannounced—he appeared to regard himself as my bosom friend—

"I met the postman as I was coming along," he said, handing me a blue envelope, "and he gave me this for you." I saw it was an application for the

I saw it was an application for the water rate.

"We must make a stand against this," he continued. "That's for water to the 29th of September, You've no right to pay it in June."

I replied to the effect that water rates had to be paid, and that it seemed to me immaterial whether they were paid in June or September.

"That's not it," he answered; "it's the principle of the thing. Why should you pay for water you have never used? What right have they to bully you into paying what you don't owe?"

He was a fluent talker and I was ass enough to listen to him. By the end of half an hour he had persuaded me that the question was bound up with the inalienable rights of man, and that if I paid that fourteen and tenpence in June instead of in September I should be unworthy of the privileges my forefathers had fought and died to bestow upon me.

The secretary replied that, having regard to the attitude I had taken up, it would be incumbent upon themselves to treat it as a test case, and presumed that my solicitors would accept service on my behalf.

When I showed him this letter he was delighted.

"You leave it to me," he said, pocketing the correspondence, "and we'll teach them a lesson."

I left it to him. My only excuse is that at the time I was immersed in the writing of a farcical comedy. What little sense I possessed must, I suppose, have been absorbed by the play.

The magistrate's decision somewhat damped my ardor, but only inflamed his zeal. Magistrates, he said, were muddle-headed old fogies. This matter was for a judge.

At parties of all kinds he was particularly prominent, and on such occasions, being in his most good-natured mood, was most to be dreaded. No human being could have worked harder for the enjoyment of others, or have produced more universal wretchedness. One Christmas afternoon, calling upon a friend, I found some fourteen or fifteen elderly ladies and gentlemen trotting solemnly round a row of chairs in the center of the drawing-room while Poppleton played the plano. Every now and then Poppleton would suddenly cease, and every one would drop wearily

"Don't ask me," he answered grum-pilly, "some of Poppleton's damn tem-foolery." Then he added savagely "We've got to play forfeits after this." The servant was still waiting a favorable opportunity to announce me I gave her a shilling not to, and got

City Jall to ascertain its condition. It was found to be a very bad state. There were no separate apartments for women prisoners, and no heat can got to the place where they are confined. The cells are dark, being lighted by a small window from a narrow corridof. There is not a room in the building which can be occupied by the matron; and she lives so far away that it takes an hour to get to the jail when she is wanted. Boys are confined with men who have long been criminals. There are no means of properly ventilating the lower part of the building, and there is an odor of sewer gas about it. Miss Dimmick, State superintendent of hospital and jail work, was present, and spoke of the bad condition of the jail, of its dampness and unhealthiness, and of the necessity that some action should be taken in the matter.

The MILLET SUIT.

The trial of the case of Mrs. N. Millet against the executor of the estate of her deceased brother, the late Lewis L. Bradbury, was resumed before Judge Shaw and a jury in Department Five yesterday, the whole of the day's session being consumed in the reading of depositions and other documentary evidence on behalf of the plaintiff.

The court having ruled out all that part of the depositions which related to services rendered more than two years prior to the death of Mr. Bradbury, little remained to be gathered from them except such testimony as tended to show the relations which existed between plaintiff and her brother during his lifetime. For this purpose Mr. Davis read to the jury what remained of the depositions of Dr. J. S. Adans, E. Hook, T. L. Merrill, L. H. Wilson, W. P. Hook, R. Dalziel, A. Miller, C. F. Swanson, J. M. his county is the shorthand reporters' mbine, which the Bar Association brought up with a round turn some time ago. It was formerly the custom for these shorthand reporters to "work" the county and litigants in civil suits a per diem for each case reported. Minor cases, a dozen of which could be tried in one day, were each charged up with one per diem, so that it became ssible for the reporter who "stood in" to average anywhere from $20 to $50 a day. The members of the bar registered judges decided that reporters must pro rate the cases so that their per diem will not exceed the legal $10 allowed. rate the cases so that their per diem will not exceed the legal $10 allowed.

This was some time ago, but recently complaints have been made that the court reporters are again getting in their work in other directions. Some of them have been accused of sitting in a case in the morning and allowing another of the combine to report the continuation of the same case in the afternoon, and each of the two would then put in his bill for the $10 per diem. Then it is also charged that overcharges are made in transcribing testimony. When it is understood that the law allows them to charge 20 cents per folio (about one hundred words.) which would make each type-written page-cost about 60 cents, it will be seen how little justification there is for any overcharge. The law is based on the rate of compensation paid when all this work had to be written out in long-hand, and was even then considered entirely too liberal. With the present system of typewriting any overcharge is nothing short of robbery. Twenty cents per folio is entirely too much for this class of work, and to such proportions do some of the bills for transcribing testimony reach, that unless there is a large amount of money at stake few litigants can afford to appeal a case.

This committee meets on Monday evening to consider ways and means for having this county represented there. The appointment of the committee seems to be a wise thing, as it will interest everyone in the proposed exhibit. But every citizen of the county ought to consider himself a member of a committee on promotion, and strive to give this county a creditable exhibit. P. J. Barber, chairman of the commission, says that the picture in the Examiner was only the rear elevation of the picturesque pyramid, which, from present appearances, will house this county's exhibit. He says that the front will have a vestibule, offices and cloak-rooms, and the facade will be handsomely embelished with typical Egyptian bas-reliefs.

The American people sprinkled a lit-tle paris green on the gold bugs last week. Now look at 'em.

The plumbers' combine begins to feel as if there had been some kind of a landslide in its direction.

The Democracy is now singing with much feeling and expression, "Oh, the Snow, the Beautiful Snow."

Cuba is the latest to have a "revolu-tion," but she is so tiny that it isn't much more than a single-barreled one.

Talk about the World's Fair. As big as it was, it didn't hold a candle to those beautiful and stately majorities of last Tuesday. A man down in Santa Ana, who edits Democrats, says: "It was — lucky there was no election in Texas." It does have that appearance.

Puck, the picture organ of the gold-buggers, is going to have considerable difficulty in making a cartoon that will fit the dynamite explosion of last week,

The Populist outfit seems to be only a little popul of a party, after all the shouting. It is now so measly that even Lizzle Lease is henpecking away, as if it was her husband.

It is mighty lucky that Grover wrote his Thanksgiving proclamation before the cloudburst. If he had waited until after last Tuesday he might have rung in a day of fasting and prayer on the country.

Gov. Flower of New York can now go off and flock and bloom all by him-self, as the Legislature isn't his killed. He might get up a combination with Altgeld of Illinois and travel around as the two governors who don't count.

Atty.-Gen. Olney is again trying to play his own hand as well as the one Judge Morrow holds—anent the new Chinese bill. If Mr. Olney don't watch out another California judge will write a letter and acquaint the Attorney-General with more or less information as to where he is at.

e propose that this here gov'ment by the people'l be controlled, I what we won with bullets with the ballot we will hold: will make old Grove 'innocuous'— yes, surely turn him down, , don't you know, a halo is next thing to a crown"

What a glorious people are these free American citizens when they get woke

What a glorious people are these free American citizens when they get woke up!

'Specially back in York State and Iowa and the old Keystone layout, and along the Miami, where Bill McKinley he gets voted for; and almost everywhere else, from the smelters of Leadville to Cape Cod. Did you hear 'em light onto Grover last Chewsday and claw him just like Eagle people would if they could reach the critter?

Did you see 'em' dance up and down on his Unexcellency, plunk him in the ribs, black his eyes and drag him around the political arena until he looked like a tramp that had been chewed up by a train of cars?

Wasn't it lovely?

Wasn't it simply immense to see the great what-is-it, who has an opinion of himself that is four sizes too big for him, get taken down and clawed, and rolled and banged in the ear?

Should smile.

Nothing so beautiful and fitting has occurred In America since the war, and there was no place where the festive scene was more thoronghly enjoyed than right up here on the rock of ages where the Eagle bird has his lair.

Yes, Grover, old man, you aren't quite so pretty as you were last Monday, but you know more. Even your fortifications of obesity and egotism were not sufficient to protect you from the grape and canister of public disgust and disesteem that rattled and thundered and whizzed and zipped around you 'tother day, knocking dents in your halo until it looked like the rim of a tin' pan that had been tied to a dog's tail, and so unsettled your royal portliness that you aren't fit to be seen at a dog fight. There is no question about it, the American people can do the rebuking act with more apiomb and satisfaction than any race of human beings that tread sand, and the joiting they gave to the disdainful potentate, who don't potent as much as he did, is an object lesson that is worth five times as much as it cost, and everybody mighty near is whooping with riotous glee at the beautiful scene in which Grover got it where the lady wore the necklace.

LAY SERMONS.

Christian thought is advancing, and it is taking a broader and a stronger hold upon the race. Men are getting to feel that it is not so much creeds that are wanted as that supreme, conscious love of Jesus Christ. With that everything else comes. The heart pens and expands under its influence intil it is large enough to take in the eeds of the whole world. The real Christian is large-visioned, open-eyed, helpful, earnest. Life is with him but a means to an end-the threshold to a higher state of exist-ence. It is the life beyond which gives value to this life, and the privilege of service is that which makes it worth the living. Jesus Christ taught his disciples the beauty of serving, and by His example He ennobled it. Out of the Christ-love is born love to humanity, and out of this springs a nobler sense of being and divinest hopes. The Christian sees in every member of the race one for whom Christ died, and out of that is born the sense of brotherhood. And can we be indifferent to our brother, or turn a deaf ear to his sufferings, and his needs? Loving Christ, the heart longs to have the world love Him also, to taste of His goodness and mercy and His compassionate tender-ness. It is a grievous sorrow to see men turning from Him, resisting His love, and scorning His forgiveness. Every Christian would help the wanderers back to the fold, would teach them the beauty and the gladness of the life hid in Christ. hid in Christ.

Christianity is a need of man's spiritual nature. Without it it is dwarfed and hungry. Proclaim as much as he may that he is sufficient to himself, there are yet times when the veriest worldling feels in the depths of his own soul that he is unsatisfied. There is a longing for something unattained, a spiritual void that is not filled, a sense of spiritual chaos and darkness, and an irrepressible desire for the illumirating light of truth. The unspoken cry of his heart is, "O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" body of this death?"

Ah, this spiritual death, where the heart is dead to divine love, and to forheart is dead to divine love, and to forgiving mercy, and yet conscious of its woe and want, how it weighs the spirit down, weighting everything with sorrow, darkening even the joys and the pleasures of life, and filling the soul with apprehensions for the future.
Into such a soul what glory and gladness breaks when first the beams of the "Sun of Bightourness" light up the ness breaks when first the beams of the "Sun of Righteousness" light up the darkness of its night. How it is overwhelmed with the infinity of divine love, and glowing and warm it embraces all the world, desiring for all its people this same manifestation of love and mercy.

A selfish Christian is a paradox. Love and selfishness must be forever at war in his nature, but if he has the real grace of God, selfishness will ultimately be cast out. These two elements are incompatible and both cannot continue to abide with him.

not continue to abide with him.

The perfection of the Christian life depends upon its measure of consecration. Entire consecration of all that we have and are, is essential to its com-pleteness. Without this, Christian growth is always hindered, and is slow growth is always hindered, and is slow and unsatisfactory. It is like a plant growing in the shade instead of the foll sunlight, which can never attain to the perfectness of beauty.

Do we often consider how free this love of God is? Its only measure is our needs; and how it satisfies them! "I have found Him whom my soul sou, ht," is the language of the heart to which Christ is fully revealed. There is not a burden in life but we can lav upon Him; not an infirmity but He can heal; not a want that He cannot satisfy. A new world is opened by His eral with more or less information as to where he is at.

The Eagle's particular friend, "Zadock," down at Santa An, has busted out into song again, and this is the way he warbles:
"A Daniel is not needed to read the message plain.
That is ringing through the country from the slope to frigid Maine.
The G. O. P. has 'wakened and railled to the call.
And has snowed the party under that took the cake last fall.

"And we'll keep the ball a roll."

Los Angeles Firm Who Know a Good Thing When They See it. Dr. H. C. Royer, of the firm of Royer & Praphagan, who have so successfully run th

Traphagan, who have so successfully run the Hamman baths, in our city, at No. 230 South Main street, for the last five years, has, since the doctor's unparalled success at Arrowhead, been carefully investigating the different resorts with the intention of gaining control of the one that could prove genuine merit as a resort for those who required all that would perfectly satisfy the pleasure-seeker; and, too, it must be so perfect that those whose travels had been extensive, could find no fault.

The doctor's ideas were not satisfied unless there was combined with this the best elements of cure for the greatest number of invalids. Southern Califognia is noted for its natural conditions, which cure a majority of all who come from different parts of the world with the hope of prolonging their days, and curing their disease.

They decided upon "Elsinore" from the very best of reasons, some of which are natural scenic beauty, which is not surpassed in the United States, if in the world. Lake, mountain and valley pictures which entrance the beholder; elevation 1300 feet, dry air, the finest of roads, millions of ducks and wild geese in season, quall rabbits and larger game, a iirst-class hotel, a bathhouse built at a cost of $16,000, mineral water and mud baths, said by experts to be the best system of bathing to be found anywhere. The value of the water cannot be equalled, consisting of sulphur, iron, potash and soda, hot, and of unusual strength.

The time from Los Angeles is four hours and thirty minutes, taking the Santa Fe 11 o'clock train, twelve minutes' ride from the Lake View Hotel.

o'clock train, twelve minutes' ride from the Lake View Hotel.

The rates at the Elsinore Hot Springs re-sort are from $8 to $15 per week for room and board; a reduction for families and by the month.

The mud baths are infallible for rheumatism, and are the finest and the most complete of any to be found in the United tates. The waters at these springs have actually performed the most wonderful cures. In kidney troubles, diseases of the stomach, liver, blood and nervous system, the patient begins to improve at once upon beginning treatment.

The perfect environments aid in making Eisinore Hot Springs Resort the acme of cure in low states of vitality, and rejuvenates the aged.

The diseases of women seem to vanish and the general health is rapidly built up. A greater share of those whose ranches make Lake Elsinore garden-rimmed, came here with all hope lost, and many on beds and crutches, but t-day are robust and well, and never tire of telling what the condition of Elsinore and its healing waters has done for them.

THE EAGLE. ACME Stationery and Art Co., corner

le oasis in the dramatic desert which has for some time back been full of melodramatic simoons, fraught with direful and deadly things to people who appreciate at least a semblance of art and unity in stage productions.

Mr. Royle has blazed a new path in the wilderness. To be sure, he has not missed striking a number of trees on which the bark has been excoriated by other dramatists, but there are glimpses of new vistas in his play. There are bushes along the road from which the dew is yet unshaken; there are daisies on the sod not yet trampled into earth by conventional travel, and the whole by conventional travel, and the whole creation has a crisp breeziness about it that is as refreshing as sea air to the man from Arizona.

That Mr. Royle has genius no one who sits through "Friends" can question, and were he to forego the profit of playing for a time and give his pen a chance, we do not doubt he would do something hansome for dramatic art. There is room for the man of bains in this big land of poor plays and poorer players, and as Edwin Milton Royle appears to be that sort of an individual—a writer who has a true conception of pears to be that sort of an individual— a writer who has a true conception of pathos, a keen wit and an eye for sit-uations—the public look to him for still greader things than the handsome little drama which he presented to three delighted audiences in Los An-geles last week.

That rarely quait comedian. Frank Daniels, who, in the matter of originality, is without a peer on the American stage, will come to the Los Angeles Theater on Tuesday night next, to fulfill his annual engagement in this city. On the occasion of his forthcoming visit he will present to the laughter-loving populace a spectacular version of that furiously funny farce, "Little Puck." Frank Daniels is a satire on comedians—a player whose delicious and delirious methods lift him so far above comparison in his own line that he may be said to be without a follower. Mr. Daniels's former appearance here need not be further alluded to than to say that "Little Puck," as he is now presenting it, is said to be immeasurably superior to any former presentation of that merry skit. His supporting company is one of the largest and strongest cramatic organizations traveling, and includes such names as Bessie Sanson, Adele Farrington-Dunn, Lizzie Derius Daly, Violet Canfield, Leona Ambrose, Rose Mitchell, Ellie Rock, Fannie Tucker, Julia Lee, Madge Everhardt, Margerie Dorr, Frank Girard, Tony Williams, John Canfield and numerous other—equally competent and well-known artists. Mr. Daniels has introduced any quantity of bright and original ideas, catchy music, and witty sayings in this farce-comedy, and his engagement here at this time is in the nature of the opening of a rich and mellow old wine after several weeks' discussion of a somber dramatic menu. The play will be presented four nights, beginning on Tuesday.

Jane Hading, who will appear with M. Coquelin at the Los Angeles Theater on November 21, was born in the profession. She became a pupil of the Conservatoire of Marseilles when but a child, and made her debut in opera in Algiers. In 1877 she went to Paris, and there made her first appearance at the Palais Royal. It was some time, however, before she made any impression in the French capital, but she kept trying both in comedy and light opera until in 1883, when as Claire in George Ohnet's "Le Maitre de Forges," she secured the success she so persistently sought. She has ever since been one of Paris' idols. Next season she becomes the leading lady in the Comedia Francaise, the first worthy successor to Sara Bernhardt.

Emma Juch is singing in the London Crystal Palace concerts. Cyrene, the dancer, will appear with the Niobe company this season.

Sol Smith Russell is having a new play written by Clyde Fitch, entitled "The Minster."

It is asserted that Gounod sold the score of "Faust" for $3, and never after received another cent for it. Marie Roze, one of the most beautiful women who ever appeared in grand opera, is now a music teacher in Paris. Lillian Russell has gone to Cuba, the object of her visit being to get ten little native boys to play in "Princess Nicotine."

The Brooklyn Eagle says that the grave of William J. Florence, in Greenwood Cemetery, lies uncared for and unsightly

Digby Bell, whose company stranded recently, has given up starring, and will appear as a member of Lillian Rus-sell's company.

Helene Mora will not appear in a new version of "Comrades," as she in-tended. She is having a new comedy written for her instead. Jerome Eddy says that when Clara Morris laughs, he laughs; when she is

y, he is gay; when she weeps, he eeps. Mr. Eddy is Miss Morris's press agent.

Modjeska and Otis Skinner are soon to produce "The Merchant of Venice" on an elaborate scale, Mr. Skinner appearing in the role of Shylock and Mme. Modjeska as Portia.

Julia Marlowe read an essay on "Sheakespeare's Women" before the Woman's Literary Club of Baltimore, and was honored by a reception at the hands of that organization recently.

Ibsen's deepest regret is that he does

Ibsen's deepest regret is that he does not speak English, and cannot, there-fore, reach the hearts of the people. Nearly all the other dramatic writers seem to be trying to reach their pockets. Miss Florence Rockwell, a New York girl of 15 years, plays as leading lady with Thomas W. Keene in such roles as "Lady Anne." Julie de Mortimer." "Ophelia," "Desdemona" and "Juliet."

"Ophelia," "Desdemona" and "Juliet."
Leonard Grover, the veteran dramatist and actor, has opened a dramatic lyceum in this city with offices at the Los Angeles Theater. Mr. Grover has had wide experience in the art of the drama, and has the capacity to make his new venture a success.

Jerome K. Jerome allows it to be understood that much of the story of "The Councillor's Wife" has its origin in his own life and that the character to be played by Henry Miller is in a considerable degree a duplicate of himself.

Miss Cora Tanner kindly thrmisnes the formula for preparing hep famous cold cream. It is as follows: Oil of sweet almonds, 7 ounces; French rose water, 4 ounces; spermacett, 2 ounces; white, wax, 240 grains. Shave the spermacetti and wax into the oil and heat gently over a slow fire until quite dissolved; then add the rose water and beat briskly until cold.

Wilson Barrett has been very successful in London with "Virginius" in a stage edition prepared by himself from Sheridan Knowles's lofty play. The London papers give him exceptional credit for the production and for his work as the Roman father.

credit for the production and for his work as the Roman father.

In a recent article in the New York World Charles Frohman stated that more young women had attempted to go on the stage during the past six weeks than he had known of apply in any six months previously. And Mr. Frohman gave some good advice to such young women, so many of whom never even get an opportunity, because they show no appreciation of the first essentials for stage work.

Of the several principals this season in "The Bostonians," five of them are natives of the West. This includes Jessie Bartlett Davis of Chicago, Miss Marguerite Reid of Madison, Wis.; Josephine Bartlett, Bertha Waltzinger and Eugene Cowles. The West seems to be able to produce operatic talent of a superior quality in considerable abundance, including among the rest the airy, fairy Lillian Russell.

A letter to a London paper from St. Petersburg says that a proposal has been made for the performance of a series of Russian operas in Paris in the early part of next year, and negotiatiens to this end are now in progress. According to present arrangements sixteen representations of the best works by Russian composers will be given, and will be interpreted by the artists of the Imperial Opera in St. Petersburg. M. Rubenstein will conduct his own opera, "The Demon," and M. Tschalkowsky will also direct one of the performances.

MRS. M. R. WOODWORTH.

MRS. M. B. WOODWORTH,

The Great Evangelist-Review of Her Work

in St. Louis Within the Last Three and a Half Years-Pacts, Figures, Results, Etc. Etc.

ST LOUIS (Mo..) Sept. 1, 1893. Mrs. Woodworth's great work in St. ouis was commenced three years and a half ago in her mammoth tent on Jefferson avenue. There was an average attendance daily of more than four thousand people. Interest increased all the while. Signs and wonders followed the preaching of the apostolic doctrine. And as she preached the Holy Ghost fell upon the people as at the house of Cornelius under the preaching of Peter. She preached Pentecostal power, and that power was felt and seen. Huadreds were saved in soul and body. She was quite popular among the churches at first, because her many converts added no little to their membership. She conceived the plan of organization into the Church of God. She suddenly became very distaste ful. Satan went to work with renewed energy, énemies multiplied, persecution raged, threats were made to arrest her and take her before the courts, all sorts of deviltry and false reports that could be devised were set afloat, and there was no little commotion. The Lord, however, turned to good account these troubles making them an advertisement of the work, and leading many to investigate for themselves. After the warm weather, the meetings were kept up as usual in rented buildings, with no abatement of interest.

Mrs. Woodworth going away, Elder Spiker was called to the care of the church, and has proved himself to be the right man in the right place. He is a man of God, full of energy, executive ability, and a fine preacher. Under his direc tion, the congregation, though poor in means, undertook to build a church-house They have built a beautiful church edifice at No. 2929 Montgomery street, the house costing $8000, and every dollar of this amount has been paid by these self- sacrificing, God-honoring people. The membership of this church is now 350. Mrs. Woodworth is controlled in her movements altogether by the leadings of the Spirit. She is not sent out by any board, port she is dependent solely upon the freewill offerings of her congregations. The e of her life is to saved and bodies healed. In her tentmeetings here, for the last two months, a mighty work has been done in the name of the Lord. Signs and wonders in the Divine healing power have been manifested as never before, and the heretofore unbelieving have been made to ex claim, "It is indeed the power of God." Mrs. Woodworth leaves here for Saler O., followed by the prayers and good more popular with the masses than she did at the close of her first visit. In her several visitations to St. Louis, she has, upor sands. This can be said of no other evan gelist. In her preaching, she uses no sideshows sorts to no Jack-o'-Lantern invitations Her great drawing power consists in the fact that she is filled with the Holy Ghe boldly and fearlessly preaches the oldfashioned Apostolic Christianity.

They Name Their Choice for Judge.

E. A. Meserve Receives the Bar's Indorsement

At the Meeting Yesterday at the Courthouse.

Struggle of the Economists to Pre-Taking Action.

The courtroom of Department Four was crowded yesterday morning, there being hardly standing room. I was the occasion of the meeting of the Bar Association to recommend one of its members to the Governor for the seat recently occupied by Judge Wade It was a distinctively Meserve meeting, and it was only by accident that a second ballot was needed to secure the required majority

The legal fraternity, when in convention assembled, is about like any other gathering, where "many men of many minds" embrace the opportunity to

Parliamentary rules were supposed to govern the assemblage, but the or-der and decorum which generally go with the parliamentary rules were somewhere else on a visit yesterday. Once the chairman had to call the shouting orators to order, and in his most impressive tones reminded them that the were "intelligent gentlemen." This had the desired effect for awhile.

F. H. Howard, Esq., president of the Bar Association, rapped the gavel, and R. H. F. Variel, Esq., was unanimously chosen to act as chairman of the meeting. J. A. Anderson, Esq., was designated to keep the official record of what was done. of what was done. Chairman Variel accepted in a neat speech.

The first person recognized was Mr. Horton, who presented a resolution in line with the supervisors's action, ask-ing the Governor not to appoint a suc-ressor to Judge Wade.

Mr. Munday moved to lay the resolu-lon on the table. While being voted r. Munday was asked to with-his motion, which he did. After ome more parliamentary juggling, the original resolution was read a second original resolution was read a second time.

Speeches were made, and then J. L. Murphy offered a substitute to the effect that it is the sense of the meeting that the business of the county did not require the appointment of a successor to Judge Wade.

Mr. Munday, who had withdrawn his motion to table the resolution, now moved to likewise sidetrack the substitute. This being seconded, was declared not debatable, and for a short time there was reasonable silence in the room. A division was lalled for and when the "yeas" were demanded there was a general dold-up of hands. Chairman Vardiel twisted himself all around in Judge-Van Dyke's chair and with extended forefinger and moving lips, counted the votes. The result was announced as 100. Pending the count some one asked, "What are we voting on?" which the chairman satisfactorily answered. The "nays" only reached 44, so Mr. Murphy's substitute for Mr. Horton's resolution was announced as out of the way.

There was another, futile attempt by the "do-nothing" membars to get the substitute of the way.

There was another futile attempt by There was another futue attempt by the "do-nothing" members to get something similar to Mr. Murphy's substitute before the meting, but Mr. Munday, who sat directly in front of the chairmas, got the floor, and moved that nominations of candidates be now, heard, after which balloting should begin.

Mr. Cronin again got the floor, and speaking on the motion to take an informal ballot, said: "There's a cat in the meal somewhere," at which he was lustily cheered.

The informal ballot sponsor then arose and said he, himself, had no personal choice for candidate, but just thought he would facilitate matters by getting an expression of opinion.

There were some loud cries of "question," but Mr. Marble was recognized by the chair and took occasion to state that, in his opinion, this entire action was premature. The Memorial Committee appionted at the recent bar meeting had not yet even presented its report, and, to his mind, it appeared indecorous to take any action looking to the appointment of Judge Wade's successor until, at least, after the bar had formally paid its last tribute of respect to the deceased.

Here some one moved to adjourn until next Saturday at 10 a.m. The motion was seconded, but lost by a stiff majority.

The Meserveites evidently did not want any delay. Too many attorneys from outside towns in the county were present at the meeting, and it might not be possible to get them together again motion of Mr. Munday, that no be possible to get them together again motion of Mr. Munday, that more than the question recurred on the original motion of Mr. Munday, that any delay is a substitute, that no name be recommended, the bar should take no action, but let the Governor follow his own inclinations.

Here T. J. Carran said there was a centleman present who had a telegram the Governor, in which it was said the supervisors' resolution had been received, and that if its suggestions were not carried out, he had already made up his mind as to whom he should appoint.

Although no names were given, it is understation that president Howard of the Bar Association telegraphed the Governor last Monday morning that Judge Wade was dead, and requested that no appointment should be mare to the above effect was received from Private Secretary Higgins the same night.

Before Mr. Carran inished, there were cries of "

J. Marion Brooks moved that a majority of all the votes cast be necessary to a choice, and that the candidate receiving the least number of votes be droppedfrom succeeding ballots. Someone here moved that all the candidates named be recommended to the Governor. Several other substitutes and amendments of about the same caliber were proposed, and Chairman Variel found it necessary to administer a rebuke to the intellectual gentlemen assembled.

Messrs. Variel, McLachlan and York were also named, but in each case the honor was declined.

Messrs. McLachlan and Varial were announced as not in the race for the position, while in the case of Mr. York, it was stater that he was not a candidate for the suffrages of this bar.

The nomnations were then declared closed and Messrs. R. N. Bulla, Charles Lantz, Charless Udell and R. A. Ling weak appointed tellers. Each voter was instructed to write his own name on one slip of paper and the name of his candidate on the other. Mr. Bulla held the candidate hat and Mr. Udell the one for names of voters.

A line then formed and the attorneys marched by the two hats, dropping a slip of paper in each. When the votes were counted it was found that there there had been some "stuffing." "repeating" or forgetting. These were floames of voters and 163 votes.

The first bailot resulted. E. A. Meserve, 79; N. P. Conrey, 31; Mason Brunson, 24; W. A. Cheney, 17; Variel, 2; York, 7, and Messrs, McLachlan, Ling and J. Marion Brooks, 1 each.

Meserve was thus three short of an election. A motion to adjourn was made and lost. The second ballot was begun, but the crowd began to thin out. The anti-Meservites, seeing the futility of further action, allowed the programme to be carried out, Meserve receired 70 votes out of 120 on the second ballot, and was declared the unanimous choice of the bar for the position of the late Judge Wade.

The chairman was authorized to appoint a committee of three with himself as ex-officio member to inform the Governor of the result. Chairman Variel later named Messrs. Bulla, Pendleton and Judge Gardiner to act with himself as such committee.

later named Messrs. Bulla, Pendleton and Judge Gardiner to act with himself as such committee.

John W. Mitchell, when asked to state for publication his reasons for opposing action by the bar, said to a representative of The Times:

"My reasons are twofold. In the first place, I don't think we need six judges in this county. There ought to be retrenchment in the county government, and this is a good way to begi—by topping off unnecessary officials. One judge less for this county would save about $5000 per annnum, as you know the county pays $2000 of the $4000 judge's salary, as well as its proportion of the State tax; that pays the rest. Besides the judges' salary, there are clerks, balliffs, stenographers, and attendants on each department of the court. This $5000, if saved, would help out the supervisors in providing some of the permanent imphovements in the way of roads and bridges, which the taxpayers in the county are clamoring for.

"Furthermore, in my humble judge-

"Furthermore, in my humble judgment, I have never known the bar, when it acts in this way, to recommend the best man for the position. The methods to secure the indorsement of the bar are about the same as those resorted to by the ward politician at primary elections. The fellow that is most previous and gets the most pledges is the successful candidate. Lawyers are good-natured fellows among themselves, and the ... of the candidate that happens along first is the one usually that gets his promise of support, and, in this way, it is just simply a question of canvassing.

"Why, in the bar meeting yesterday, a very large one, it is true, there were many lawyers dug out of retirement—lawyers only in name now, for they make no pretensions of practicing—but an active canvasser gets their pledges, and out they come to fulfill their room. Furthermore, in my humble judg-

WHOSE RESOLUTIONS. Some Information for the Benefit of Fruit-

POMONA, Nov. 11.—(To the Editor of The Times.) Referring to the article in this morning's Times it just happens that I know a little something about it. The resolutions were got up by the Rural Californian and Heintz and his Rural Californian and Heintz and his editor (Kruckeberg), got. Dr. Hyar of Ontario to introduce them, saying afterward that they did not want to introduce them themselves. It was plainly to be seen that the fruit-growers did not understand the matter, and not more than, two of them voted, at all. The Rural Californian also got Clarke to telegraph them over the State. At least, I am satisfied about the above facts. I overheard Heintzand Kruckeberg laughing about the matter afterward.

The concert given under the auspicer of the Methodist ladies on Friday even.

The concert given under the auspices of the Methodist ladies on Friday evening was an unqualified success. The Congregational Church, where the affair took place, was filled with delighted spectators, by whom every number of the programme was thoroughly appreciated. The receipts netted the ladies a handsome sum, which will be applied to the fund for repairing the church and purchasing a new carpet.

The streets are again overrun with "hobos," and the police are straining every nerve to keep the unruly element in check. A few mornings since Mr. Browning, the hardware dealer, found a back window pried open when he came to open the store. The place had evidently been entered, but so far as could be ascertained, nothing of any value was taken, this indicating that the thieves were only in search of money, and not finding any went elsewhere.

The singing evangelist, George Robert Cairns, is expected shortly to conduct a series of meetings at the Baptist Church. Mr. Cairns comes highly recommended from San Francisco, and has traveled extensively in Great Britain.

Sal Ammoniac as a Black Scale Destroyer.

Electrician Lundborg Makes a Chance Discovery-The Minimum of Cost a Great Consideration -Successful Tests.

A new and simple destroyer of the been discovered, which, if proven as successful in other orchards as it has in those already treated, will undoubtedly become very poular among fruit-growers, whose trees are infested with the pest named.

There are already a great many remedies in use, all of which are more or less efficient in accomplishing the result desired, but their use entails considerable expense, and the item of cost has always proven an objection The new spray consists merely of a solution of water and ordinary salammoniac or chloride of ammonia.

monia in his batteries, that a solution of it might prove a successful destroyer of the black scale, and he accordingly made the test on some trees in his yard, with most satisfactory results.

When the reporter asked Mr. Lundborg yesterday why he had not endeavored to make public his discovery, in order that orchardists might make trials with it, he replied that he had spoken to a prominent horticulturalist about, it but the latter had informed him that he had a wash of his own which spoken to a prominent horticulturalist about, it but the latter had informed him that he had a wash of his own which did its work well. "Of course," said Mr. Lundborg, "that was enough, and I said no more about it to him. I did mention it to a wholesale druggist, and through him it seems there have been several tests made."

Carl Laux, the Spring-street druggist, who has a large orange orchard out in the Eagle Rock Valley, was one of those who had tried the solution on his trees. He stated that he had made several applications of the spray in his orchard. The effect had seemed to be immediate, as a subscuent examination of the scale showed that they were lifeless. With the next rain Mr. Laux thinks his trees will be washed clean of the now-dead pests. He is very confident that the new remedy will prove successful in all instances. Its cost is but about one-half of a cent per gallen. The method of preparation is simply to allow from one-half to one ounce of the sal ammeniac to each gallon ef water, ordinary spray pumps being used to apply it. Ammonia itself being a fertilizer moniac to each gallon of water, ordinary spray pumps being used to apply it. Ammonia itself being a fertilizer, has the effect of brightening the leaves of the trees and bringing on a clear, healthy look to the foliage. As competition is quite keen among manufacturers of patent washes, the new preparation, which reduces the cost of spraying to the minimum, will probably find many enemies to cry it down as worthless and ineffectual. Whether or not it is such, remains to be determined by the growers themselves.

This evening the services at Simpson Church will be of unusual interest. The Young Men's Christian Association has charge of the exercises, and an interesting programme is promised. There will be a grand praise service given by the choir of Simpson Church, the Y. M. C. A. Quartette and other talent, and an address by the eloquent evangelist, F. L. Smith, who opens his meetings in Los Angeles today.

The Hawaiian Affair.

Secretary Gresham, in his letter to the President, shows that the reports of Commissioner Blount establish, in brief, the following facts in regard to recent happenings in the Hawaiian Isl-

On January 14 Queen Liliuokalani announced her intention of proclaiming a new constitution, but, on the representation of her Ministers, changed her purpose, and publicly announced that she had done so. On the same day a so-called Committee of Safety, consisting of thirteen men, a majority of them aliens, was appointed, which, a day later, established a provisional governwith the ultimate object of annexation to the United States. At the request of this committee, which represented that lives and property were in peril, Minister Stevens instructed the captain of the U.S.S. Boston to land troops, who were quartered in a hall secured by Mr. Stevens for their accommodation, opposite the government building, and in view of the Queen's palace. To protests from the Hawaiian government, only evasive replies were sent Then an American member of the provisional government entered the empty government building and read a proclamation, declaring the existing government overthrown. Mr. Stevens, on being requested, at once recognized the provisional regime as a de facto government. They next asked and obtained the occupation of the stationhouse by an American force from the Boston. During all this time there opposition or demonstration from the Royalists. The Queen, being informed that the provisional government was backed by the United States, abdicated under protest, to avoid bloodshed.

Mr. Blount says he did not meet single annexationist at Honolulu who expressed a willingness to submit the question to a vote of the people. The government surrendered its authority under a threat of war, until such tim only as the government of the United States, upon facts being presented to it, should reinstate the constitutional sovereign.

Secretary Gresham presents the cas clearly and forcibly, stating the posi-tion and acts of this government, as well as the respective attitudes of the Queen and of the so-called "revolutionists," with accuracy and without partisanship or passion. He fortifies his position with the official records, and takes unequivocal ground in favor of the restoration of the legitimate govern ment-the queenly regime of Liliuoka lani-which was overthrown by the direct intervention of the military and civil power of the United States, and which could not have been overthrown without that power. The Secretary takes the position that such inand is at peace was unwarranted, and that, therefore, the United States should, as an act of reparation and simple justice, proceed to undo the wrong it has done to a weak and friendly power by restoring the deposed Queen to her throne, or at least by restoring the status quo in Hawaii as it existed when Minister Stevens and the ma rines put their oars in where they did

We freely concede that this govern ment would not be justified in under taking the restoration of the Queen if it had had no hand in her overthrow. But it is bound, in common honor, to make the deposed sovereign whole if her rights, so far as those rights have been invaded by the United States.

It is true, the "bad break" made un Stevens of hoisting the American flag on Hawaiian soil, at the instigation of a local faction, was followed by the worse break under the Cleveland Blount regime of hauling our flag down in a partisan spirit. One act was about as defensible as the other, and neither would have been committed by level-headed and well-balanced officials with their wits about them.

We believe that Secretary Gresham is In the right, and that he has taken a strongly-justified position in the pending This affair should be treated from a national, not a partisan stand point. It is not a question merely of sustaining the administration of Presi dent Cleveland, or of condemning the administration of ex-President Harrison. It is a question of national dig nity and decency-a question of justice as between countries, one great and powerful, the other weak and insignificant. It is a question whether the gov ernment of the United States shall depart from its time-honored policy of non-interference in the internal affairs of other nations at peace with this country; whether a politico-personal Honolulu shall be made the oc casion for the forcible interference of throw of a government first recognized ment de facto and de fure of that country, and which had committed no of-

The Monument of Golden Days. A great many Americans there are who urge as an excuse for spending so much of their time and money in foreign travel that we have nothing old in America that the romantic interest which clusters about venerable foreign ruins and ancient historic piles does not attach itself to anything that we have in this New World. The glamour of mystery or of olden story does not envelop us. With the vesterdays of time we have little to do. Everything is distressingly modern, and, metaphorically speaking, smells of fresh paint.

But while we utter these complaints we are busy as best we may be in destroying, or recklessly permitting to go to ruin, the monuments of the civilization which preceded us, antedating our own upon these shores by many a generation.

People in the East read of our quaint adobes and of our crumbling old Missions with something of the interest with which they read of like structures in old Spain. Many traverse the continent that they may look upon the tiled roofs in California, and see her crumbling adobes and hoary old Mission piles, those milestones along the path of progress in the civilization of this State. How eagerly they study them, and tread in imagination the dim pathway of years as it leads backward to early Spanish settlements upon this Coast and the later rearing of these piles of sunburnt bricks, with their quaint old towers and arches, and their bells hoary with the rime of years. Time, leaning on his scythe, can count centuries since the first glimmer of the new dawn that broke over this Western slope and it first set itself to make ready for today, while generations have ome and gone since the first sun-dried brick was laid upon our soil and the adobe dwelling took the place of the ruder shelters of the children of the But everywhere now the ruthless hand of modern civilization is laid upor these remaining monuments of olden Everywhere the adobe, with its tiled roof and rafters held in place by leathern thongs, is being torn down to give place to structures of modern ar chitecture, such as abound in the great cities of the East. And yet we cross seas to look upon homes of which these

But it is not too late for Los Angeles, for California, to learn wisdom in this matter. It is not too late for our old terference in the domestic affairs of a Missions to be restored and preserved, and for his the spice of the date mach dwellings the our unided from titter They are of more interest to the visitor from other States than the most elegant' modern mansions that we can build. If Dos Angeles doubt keep a portion of one street intact. built up only by these adobe walls, covered with their tiled roofs, it would thousands the most interesting spot in this city—a pueblo of the past, linked with the city of today. About these hoary dwellings would forever linger the story of the past, the romance, linked with dark-eyed senoritas and gay caballeros, and the life of ease and joyousness lived in this warm sunshine by the no-care-taking race that preceded us. What had they to do with ambition like ours? It was enough that the cattle fed in the rich pastures and the sheep covered the hundred hills. That the vineyards vielded their purple grapes and rich wines, and the olive trees, which the Mission fathers planted, their plenteous fruit. Never the sound of the ocean steamer, never the thunderous tread of the fron horse. The carreta, with its heavy wheels, was their charlot The swift-footed mustang and wild bronco were sufficient for their loco motion. Once or twice a year the white-sailed ship would touch at their harbors, and for their tallow and their hides it would bring them gay garments and jewels and rich silks. Wha more did they want? Money was not needed for travel. A generous hospitallty prevailed, and the gold and silver of the host was at the disposal of his guest. It was before the age of cranks, before the generation of professional tramps existed, for the tramp is the parasite of modern civilization. feeding largely upon its life and en ergy, content with existence without

> Those were golden days of the long ago, when a happy pastoral people dwelt content beneath these tiled roofs, and filled the old Missions with their Te Deums and their chanted Deo Gratias. The great world was far from their doors. Of its_rivairies, its con-tentions, and its ambitions they knew dolce-far-niente existence was enough for them. horse were the fleet-footed steeds upon whose backs they rode with the swiftviands the luscious grapes that purpled their hillsides. Life was but a dream, redolent with the sweetness of wild bloom, full of its glory of color, and warm with semi-tropical sunlight. Winter stood, as now, afar off upon the heights, swaying his scepter amid the snows, but sun-crowned summer walked the valleys' length trailing her emerald robes, pearled with raindrops' from November to May. There was music and song and merry dance behind these old adobe walls, and darkeyed senoritas, dressed in silken robes, made the dim-lighted rooms fair with their beauty. If the old walls could speak what stories of the past could they tell; what pictures of indolent, happy life could they give us. Along their lines is written the story of another civilization than ours. They are the relics of a past that has vanished, and they syllable the fact of a longdeparted yesterday. For this reason we should be interested in preserving at least a few of these homes, and all the old Missions of the State. In time. preserved, they will become Meccas of the American antiquarian who cannot go abroad. He will come here and sit in their shadow, while his fancy revels in the life which they represent. He will look upon them as the monuments of golden days in California's early history, and set the old California as a jewel in the romance

How God Ruled the World Vesterday. Consistency is a jewel which the world always admires. It is always set in honest principle, and it is a prominent feature of the individual when strong and upright principles are the basis of character. Character built upon intelligence and noral stamina never develops the crank, for the crank is the individual his ruling motive of action, and to lead him into all sorts of mental exravagancies, while it takes captive his all his relations in life, are colored by his one supreme and unreasoning idea and everything else takes form from it. Controlled so wholly by it, he is in-capable of sound reasoning and of correct conclusions It is his one premise in logic, and fills the scope of his men tality.

The closing days of this nineteenth century have seen a large increase in the genus crank-extremists in whatever they seize upon as their motive of conduct. A rational idea of life, as a whole, is measurably lost sight of by them. Everything that is not wholly conformed to their idea of what should be, is sweepingly condemned.

But the truth of it is, that while the world is not in all respects what we would have it, we must take it as it is. That other reformers who are trying to make the world better, pursue methods different from our own is no reason why they should be con-demned without a hearing. Goodness is not confined to any one class, to any one sect in society, and no one merely human method has yet been discovered that is sufficient for the moral redemption of the race. Take the newspaper for instance that great compiler of human historywhere would you place it, and what is its legitimate work? erefy the recorder of the inoffensive, the good and the practical in life, or shall it be also the dreaded Nemesis of the wrong-doer, the vehicle through his guilt and immoralities and crimes are laid bare to the reprobation are the type, and build about them a

It is its duty to do this is a part of its great mission, for on the sentinel on guard on the ramparts and towers of morality, and it is expected to cry aloud when lust and vice assail them, that the people may be aware of their danger. It has made the escape of the criminal a knows of the wrong which he has done. It has pursued the swindler, the robber, the murderer, to the utmost corners of the world, and aided in bringing them to justice.

We bespeak no mercy for the news paper that caters to prurient senti-We are not in sympathy with it. Such a newspaper is not a legitimate representative of true journalism; but would those who are making indiscriminate fights against modern journalism assert that crime, and sin, and wrong of every sort should be covered up and never be alluded to in the daily newspaper? Should there be no record in its columns of anything but the proprieties of life, and the daily work of the virtuous and the good! If such a sublimated newspaper as this were possible, what would the world, what would the church know of numan depravity? There is nothing like the knowledge of existing evils as shown in the reputable daily journal to arouse the community to earnes action against them. The question may well be asked by every moral reformer and lover of his kind: How can we do battle if we do not know the enemy we have to fight, and are utterly ignorant of his tactics? There is nothing that the man of immoral habits, who is posing in society as a man of exemplary character and virtuous conduct, so shrinks from as the community where he lives. This whose backs they rode with the swift-less of the wind. Better than rich leands the luscious grapes that pur-leands the luscious grapes that purthe press will not uncover his immoralities, and the check-rein loosened, and he gives full sway to his evil inclinations.

The venerable president of one of our Eastern colleges—a man of noble Christian character and rare culture, was some time since asked by one of his acquaintance in a censorious spirit, "Why, sir, do you permit yourself to read the Sunday newspaper? The good man drew himself up to his full height, and, in deep, sonorous tones replied: "I read the Sunday newspaper, sir to learn how God has ruled the world since yesterday.'

But how small a proportion of the rulings of Providence can we know if we read nothing of the evils which, for some wise yet mysterious purpose He permits to exist in the economy of human affairs. These existing evils cannot be crushed out by simply ing them and covering them with the mantle of silence. The world must be brought face to face with them in their enormity. It is the only way to secure public safety. Unsuspecting innocence is never safe when assailed by the vile machinations of the deceiver, who too often appears in the guise of an angel of light The knowledge that impurity exists and that vice is aggressive and unsparing, will be to the young a shield in time of danger. Simple ignorance does not give vitality to virtue, but virtue abhorrently conscious of existing dangers is no negative quality, but is strong and on the defensive.

Thus, the self-respecting journal, which faithfully transcribes each day's happenings, exposing and condemning the evil, and preparing the unwary for the dangers that beset them, is a better friend to humanity and purity, and throws a stronger safeguard around who permits a single idea to become the young and the innocent, than the newspaper which would respond to the cry which demands the withholding of all knowledge from the community of intelligence and reason. Society, and the vice and immorality existing in its midst, and which needs rebuke and the strong arm of public restraint

Let us be just and give to the selfrespecting newspaper the honor that is its due, when boldly and unflinchingly, without fear or favor, it attacks and exposes vice, and holds it in all its blackness up to the searching light of day, condemning it as it merits, and quickening the public conscience till it is fully aroused to the need of easures for its suppression: It is the only way to deal with evils, and to root them out from our midst.

"Come not near me for I am holier than thou," is not the spirit that is wanted in this warfare against vice neither is the covering-up process the one that will prove successful in its eradication, but it must be exposed and held up boldly to public condemnation. By this means, and this alone can we hope to curb it ...

Perhaps one of the neatest and simplest explanations for the asserted de-cadence of marriage, offered at the last meeting of the Friday Morning Club, was that of a school girl, who naively wrote: "Because we can't propose." There is no doubt that when that privilege is extended to the fair sex-as doubtless will be, with many other "rights," after they get the ballot there will be a great increase in the number of marriages, for what male brute would be so heartless as to refuse the time-honored subterfuge of promising to be a "brother to her? riages would increase, it is true, but then we might be forced back on the much debated of late: "Is Marriage a Failure?" If men often act so badly after they have gone half crazy to get a girl, what might we expect from em when they have merely married the dear things to please them, or for or some other proverb-builder, so pertinently said: "You can lead a man to drink." Really, we believe that if women would only be content to be womanly cease to strive for rights that would be of questionable value to them, and no the horrid males as possible, the marriage question would, to a great ex

We have always been given to be eve that if a particularly pure grade of purity is to be found anywhere in American politics, that article is to b had in almost any desired quantity among the Populists. Now comes Mrs Lease, the loud-mouthed and enthusi astic champion of that new political departure, and says: "No has ever been disgraced with corrupt men than some of those who hold positions of trust under the Populist administration. Personally I am jubilant over the result in Kan sas. It is not the party that is de feated, but the leaders who are repu-feated, but the leaders who are repudi-ated." Can such things be? And if the Populist party, or a considerable portion of it, has become so corrupt within such a very brief space of time, how when, or where are we to seek for political purity (with two big P's) in the future? If, as is stated, a number of the unemployed men in this section will not accept work at good wages when it is offered them, the sooner that fact is definitely ascertained the better will be for those who are really willing to work, and for the community which is to assist them. One of the first jobs to be undertaken by the Associated Charities is to establish some system by which the unemployed goats may be separated from the sheep—even if they do "buck"—and the best way to do this is to provide some kind of work for men who seek it and profess to want it. Then those who won't work voluntarily can be made to work against their will, or be made to leave

A leveling process has entered into American life with the development of labor unions. According to the Boston Transcript in some of our New England mills the best operatives are not allowed by their unions to accomplish more than an amount of work which is within the possibilities of their fellows. Nor can they do this work promptly and have a time of recreation to themselves. They must stay at their work and not do more than a scheduled amount, that they may not show their superiority over the less skillful. In such a mill a workman must remain forever, a workman, and thus we may look for a class from which there can be fig. a mill a workman must remain forever, a workman, and thus we may look for a class from which there can be fig. a class from which fig. a class from which fig. a class f vance to the higher class. Such a policy is stupidity and injustice itself. The Eiffel Tower at the Paris Exposition proved a bonanza to the company which erected it. The Ferris wheel at the World's Fair has done still better for its owners. The receipts, at 50 cents each ride, amounted to $726,805. After paying $300,000 of bords the company divided $426,805 with the exposition, and, after paying its operating expenses, had over $150,000 left, the principal part of which was divided among the stockholders. With such encouraging returns we may expect to see big wheels, towers and captive balloons spring up in every direction until they cease to be a novelty.

Since the World's Fair closed a great many people have been inquiring as to the number of people who visited the big show. The total paid attendance from the first to last is given at 21,458,910 persons; while the total free admissions, including employees of all numbered 5,958,818, making a total attendance of 27,412,728. Th on the last day amounted to 242,575, of which 208,173 paid. This is an excellent showing, even if it is not quite so large as some enthusiastic i predicted at the opening of the fair.

The new county of Riverside is already having trouble with its prohibition law. It has again been discovered that prohibition does not prohibit, large quantities of liquor being shipped into the county and disposed of on the quiet. Meantime, those who favor the ordinance are urging the officials to prose cute the offenders, but, when requested make complaint, refuse to do so on the ground that they do not wish to probably not be long before Riverside county will return to high license and he regulation of the liquor traffic.

The outlook for our Democratic friends is certainly not very promising just at present. The party is very badly torn up on the silver question, and still more so in regard to the In fact ,since the late disastrous landslide, some of the Democratic leaders talk as if they had joined the ranks of the army which is led by McKinley. It is, however, more a sense of impending danger than a conviction of the falsity of their principles which inspires these people

Whisky and Weeping.

((Pittsburgh Dispatch:) "Coming down Wylie avenue today," said, a gentleman who resides on that street, "I saw a colored man fondly embraging one of his friends, weeping most bitterly and evidently involved in great trouble. I became interested and questioned a man who was standing near me what the cause of the man's misery was.

"Oh, he's only been drinking crying whisky," was the reply. Seeing I did not comprehend he went on to explain: "We have a brand of whisky up here that's called crying whisky, because when a man takes two or three drinks of it he immediately begins to tell you all his troubles, with an accompaniment of weeping like that fellow over there is doing." Against "Hawaii for the Hawaiians." LONG BEACH, Nov. 11, 1893.—(To the Editor of The Times.) Without gothe Editor of The Times.) Without going into all the pros and cons of the subject, it would appear to any one who has closely followed the political situation on the Hawaiian Islands for the past eighteen months, that the aim of Secretary Gresham has been more to throw discredit on the course of the former United States administration with regard to Hawaii, than to act in an honorable and impartial manner as regards the present situation. It seems to have simmered down to a question of veracity between ex-Mina question of veracity between ex-Min-isters Stevens and Blount, with a large majority of public opinion in favor of the statements of the former. None who have known their excel-lencies, President Dole and Vice-President Damon, can for one moment be-lieve that they would lend themselves to the overthrow of the monarchy sim-ply for self gain and advancement. It ply for self gain and advancement. It sounds very well to cry, "Hawaii for the Hawaiians," but it would be just as reasonable to say, "America for the Indians." Until a dissolute and cor-rupt Queen attempted to disfranchise the whites, who alone had built up the islands to what they are today, there was no thought of overthrowing the monarchy.

Yet the average negro of the votes." Yet the average negro of the South is far in advance in every way of the average Kanaka. Many of the English oppose the provisional government of Hawaii, and favor the monarchy, solely because they hope in time that the islands will fall into the hands of Great Britain, and thus advance their personal interests. There are also a large number of whites who favor a republican form of government, and are at present op-posed to annexation, but, rather than see the old monarchy restored, would join forces with the annexationists. visional government of Hawaii, even if he does own the United States Senate, and as to his telling them to step down and out and restore the ex-Queen to power, he might as well command the power, he might as well communicated States of Brazil to abolish

We cut, fit and baste Capes free for all who buy their material here. It takes two yards to cut a new style cape. Figure the cost. You can easily make a cape when it is cut, fit and basted. The main thing to be observed is to have the garment hang right from the shoulders. When we baste a cape it will hang right. Braids are being very largely used for trimmings; we have the new style Hercules in five different widths; also a fine lot of Black and White Braids. Black and white is leading. We are headquarters for Cloaks. We are headquarters for Capes.

As we expect an unprecedented crowd it would be well to get in promptly on time. The best colors will all go out in a jiffy.

We place on sale this week

A NOTHER NEW LINE OF CAPES. ONCE more we can show a good assortment of Blacks and Tans. For the past two seasons we have been selling Capes for about one-half the prices asked by cloak houses. An assertion like this may seem strange to you, but when you consider we make our own Capes claim. A manufacturer makes a profit on the cloth, and on the trimmings, as well as a profit on the gar-ment when it is made up. We buy our cloths direct from the importers, make them up, and then add but the one profit. Everyone knows who has looked around that our prices are very much less than elsewhere. They are made fuller and fit better, and the large sales in the Cloak Department emphasize these facts. One Price-Plain Figures.

Rich embroidered Plaques for Hats.

NEW SHAPES AND NEW COLORS IN FELTS for Ladies, Misses and Children. A full assortment of black and white Ostrich Tips, black and white Satins and Silks for trimmings; new ideas in Hat Ornaments, and a large lot of new shapes for old ladies in straws and felts. Our Millinery business is done on a basis of moderate profits; we pay particular attention to the trimming, and while we do the best work we mark all Millinery at a reasonable price. All the new shapes in Sailors. Sailors are at the top of the heap; the higher the crown the better the style. Felt and Plush Sailors; Blacks, Browns, Blues, Tans, Navy; all have high crowns. Every lady who has visited the Millinery Department this season has been impressed with the richness of the Hats at $3, $4 and $5.

Soutache Braids in all colors.

FERCULES BRAIDS IN ALL COLORS AND in all widths; a new style in Mohair Braid suitable for facing Cloakings and for Hop Sackings; all colors in Silk Girdles for Capes and Morning Wrappers and Smoking Jackets. Black and white Braids in all widths; new narrow Gimps in blacks and all the leading colors. A few of the many desirable articles in the Trimming Department. Braids are unusually good; Hercules Braids are exceptionally good.

You may hunt from one end of

A MERICA TO THE OTHER AND YOU WILL find no Corset better than a Royal Worcester. Hundreds of ladies who have been induced to discard a favorite for the Royal Worcester are today the strongest advocates for their superior fit and comfortable feeling. A Royal Worcester is made to conform to the body. Nature was never intended to conform to a Corset. It is important the right shape is secured for each particular form, and as we study the art of fitting Corsets you are sure to get the right article when you visit this house. We prefer to miss a sale rather than sell a Corset unsuited to your figure. Every perfect-fitting Corset sold makes a permanent customer for the house. Every well-dressed lady who wears a Royal Worcester Corset is a walking advertisement for their superior merits. A dressmaker overlooks her own interests when she recommends a Corset, for the purpose of a discount, that is wholly unsuited to the wearer. A wise dressmaker will insist upon a proper fitting Corset before she attempts to fit a lady. We tell you candidly, we sell nothing but Royal Worcester Corsets. We give no discount to any one under any circumstances. We have a Corset that took the Grand Model and Dislome at the World's took the Grand Medal and Diploma at the World's Fair over all others. This alone shows the high merit in which this Corset is held by competent judges. No other Corset has as large a sale in this city. We are the exclusive agents for Royal Worcesters, while other well-known brands are sold by all others, and yet our sales of Royal Worcesters exceed any other brand. When we tell you we will sell 2500 more Corsets this year than we sold last year, it shows conclusively we have at least 2 00 more advocates for the Royal Worcester. The Royal Worcester starts at one dollar and runs up to $8. We sell more Corsets from $2 up to $5.50 than at any other price. With at least 2500 more customers this year than last, and each and every one saying a good word for the Royal Worcesters, what do you suppose the increase will be in another year? We know a Royal Worcester is made from the best materials obtainable, and that extra care is taken in shaping the Corset and molding the bust. The busts in a great many of these Corsets are steam molded, and they retain their shape and give proper support. Double and triple back wires and double side steels are some of the features. Some of the Corsets have the bones incased in a perspiration-proof material. All these things will be pointed out to you by competent fitters-ladies who understand the art of Corset-fitting. Do you wear a Royal Worcester? If not try one. If not perfectly satisfactory in every way bring them back and get your money.

Fur Edging is one of the

MOST STYLISH AND FASHIONABLE ARTI-ticles in the market. We have a full line at 25c, 40c, 50c, 75c and $1.25. TEEDS A CAPE. CAPES ARE STYLISH. FUR Capes are the extreme of style. Fur Capes are made different this season than last, and any lady who wants the latest style in a Fur Cape can find it here. One thing worth remembering is, you will pay us a reasonable and just profit if you purchase here. They are all marked in plain figures and sold for one price. No deviation, no discount, no misrepresentations. If you buy a Fur Cape here and feel you paid us more than you can buy the same for elsewhere, bring it back and get your money. All we ask is for the goods to be returned in a good merchantable condition. We urge no sales. We show goods freely and have no desire to obtain business on any other basis. Each and every clerk in the house is required to show goods and to show them freely, to treat the patrons of the house in a proper manner. Sarcesm to a customer is not allowed, and we endeavor to carefully watch every employee to see that they carry out these instructions. We believe they do. If at any time any one feels in the least slighted or mistreated, we consider it a favor to report it at once. We aim to be the wide-awake house of the city, and guard every avenue to bring about the best results. Every line we write in an advertisement we mean to carry out; we keep faith with the public; we treat our help right, and we expect them to treat you right in return. Be free to come and see what we have. Whether you wish to purchase or not the same attention will be shown you. Where else can you say the same?

Special Correspondence of The Times, WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The great American brain is boiling today as it has seldom boiled before. Financial troubles and business worries are blazing away under the kettle, and the demon of overwork is stirring up the soup with ghoulish glee. The newspapers daily record the suicides and insanity of leading men and the nerves of rich and poor are stretched to their utmost. A level head and a steady hand are greater necessities now than silver and gold, and the question of how our great men keep them is more interesting to the masses than the discussions of Congress. I am surprised to find how prominent men have WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.- The great prised to find how prominent men have to fight for steady brains. Half of the members of Congress have shattered nervous systems and there are a num-ber of leading Senators who are fighting the arch fiend of insomnia night

ABE HEWITT'S FIGHT FOR SLEEP.
Perhaps the worst sleeper who ever came to Washington was Abram S. Hewitt. He had a suit with a baker in the next block, whose dog barked at the moon at midnight, and he went almost wild over a cock that crowed near him in the early morning. He kept house there for a time and had beds in half a dozen different rooms. He would change about from one room to the other in his efforts for sleep, and when in New York he would go about from house to house for the same purpose. During a part of his Congressional career he boarded at Wormley's, and he had at this time the entire upper floor, embracing three bedrooms. On the morning following the first night he went to Wormley and complained of the dogs which kept him awake. "I can fix that," said Wormley, and the next day the dogs were taken away. On the day following, Hewitt said he was kept awake by the yowling of the cats. Mr. Wormley replied: "The cats are harder to get rid of than the dogs, but I will see what I can do to get rid of them." The third night Hewitt came down more disgusted than ever, and said he had failed to get sleep because of the noise made by the birds. Wormley hereupon threw up HEWITT'S FIGHT FOR SLEEP.

OVERWORK—WORRY.

as an office-boy, and who, up to that time had worked without cessation, became to fall in health. He could not sleep and his meals did not agree with him. One day his family physician came into his office and said, "Robert I would be popular with the boys of the country, Everyone knows how fond prelied the physician," and I want you check for $375."

"What for?" said Bonner.

"I have got a horse for you," replied the physician, and it want you to drive him. You are making a lot of money, but it will be of no good to you only salvation is to get into the open air for a part of every day." Weff, Bonner gave the man a check and tried in his drives to pass such men as John Harper of Harper Bros. and Common drove Vanderbilt, who were taking the same medicine. He afterward paid the same amount to o'Vanderbiti for Maud S., and it is said that the price he paid Stanford for to Sunol was more than a hundred thousand dollars. Altogether he has spent in the neighborhood of half a million to of dollars for horses and his chief pleasure in his old age is said to be driving. John Rockefeller gets much of his rest from his horses. He keeps a good stud and he used to get up at 5 am. and sped his team for an hour before breakfast. The late millionaire Congressman Scott, of Pennsylvania, eased his brain with horse breeding and Don Cameron woos the god of health by taking long horseback rides into the country.

a hunting excursion which Senator Vance. Howell Jackson, now justice of the Supreme Court, and the late Senator Beck of Kentucky took a year or two ago. It was during the Christmas holidays, and Beck, Vance and Jackson wanted Vest to go with them to shoot ducks. Vest objected, saying he didn't propose to get his feet wet to his water.

Jackson lost $10,000 which he bet upon him. Cleveland is too heavy a man to ride horseback. While he was living at Oak View he straddled a steed occasionally, but his favorite exercise today is in the carriage. He drives every afternoon to the Soldiers' Home or out to Tenleytown, and the streets along his line of march are now watered daily.

PRESIDENTIAL WALKERS.

President Cleveland seldom goes on foot outside of the White House grounds. Harrison walked miles every day. In company with one of the ladies of his family he could be seen every afternoon out about the White lot, near the Washington monument, or taking a stroll through the parks. He always walked to church, and when he was worried about public matters he would drop his work and go off for a long two or three-mile walk into the country. Gen. Grant was often seen on the streets here during his life in the White House. He usually had a cigar in his mouth, and he would talk to any one who spoke to him. President Lincoln walked about somewhat, but his Cabinet was afraid to have him go out of the house, and it was they who insisted upon the guard which he took with him when he went horseback riding. Lincoln got a great deal of his rest from the theater. A box was reserved for him at the theaters here, and he could go in and out as he pleased. He was sometimes in the theater, I am told, when the curtains of the box were drawn and the spectators did not know he was present. He often took Tad with him, and the boy used to go behind the stage, and once or twice he appeared in minor parts, where he had nothing to say. John Quincy Adams walked from the White House to the Capitol and back every day. When he was overkorked he would take a long tramp or a swim in the Potomac, and there is a tradition here that during one of these swimming excursions his clothes were stolen, and he had a hard-time getting them back in time to go to the Executive Mansion.

John Quincy Adams also liked horses, though he rode but little, and he used to walk out to the racetrack, two miles from here, and watch the races. President Harrison's grandfather was a good walker, and while he was in the White House he trotted to market every morning, with his basket on his arm, and picked out his lown meats. He died as much from worry and overwork as anything, and his last words were uttered in delirium concerning office-seekers. an official capacity. Ever since the entries closed last month there has been a continuous gathering of noted horse-owners and lovers in New York, and while last year's show was larger in point of num-bers this year's exhibit already sur-passes in quality any equine exhibit yet held.

"Exhibitors are learning each year," "Exhibitors are learning each year," said President Fellowes, commenting on the prospects of the competition during its six days' duration, "that it is useless to show anything but the very best stock. This is, of course, most gratifying to us, as it proves that our object in stock. This is, of course, most gratifying to us, as it proves that our object in promoting improvement in the breeding of all classes is being attained."

The thoroughbreds will, naturally, be the center of attraction, and eight of them, all royally bred, will contend for the blue ribbon. Among them Greenland, the stallion, who, in 1881, won the Metropolitan handicap, seems a prime favorite for the first prize of $300. This class is to be shown in hand, however, not ridden, and that smart filly, Kentegerna, which put so many races to her credit this year, is expected to be a formidable rival. Edward Kelly also enters Devotee, and W. A. Wadsworth will exhibit The Devill To Pay, a grandson of Robert the Devil. This last horse captured two firsts at the United States Horse Show last spring. The Belwood stud, S. S. Howland's noted drove, will be represented by Lunar Eclipse, a superb horse and admitted to be a probable sire of good hunters. There are, in addition, Macbeth (who ranks among the first favorites) Elect, Saxony and Ironside, the latter a Canadian exhibit. These animals will, collectively, make a great show, and the favorite will have a picked field to contend against.

Helen, and Alma, exhibited by Duto ner & Son. A. B. Darling shows Alertia, Grace D. and Hilda. Mr. Dickermin's Portrait and Mr. Hollister's Elizabeth L. are sinong the other well-known animals.

A WELL-FILLED CLASS.

The classes of roadsters, standard or non-standard, have filled better than ever. A roadster, when mature for driving, should not, under the accepted conditions, be less than fifteen hands high. Conformation, color, style of going, manners, hock and knee action, whether driven with ordinary or heavy shoes to force action; also, whether strained with checking or severe bits, are all details that will be considered in judging. There are over thirty-cight entries, and, with such exhibitors as Col. Lawrence Kip, J. G. K. Lawrence, Charles Phillips, C. M. Reed, Marshail P. Wilder, Joseph Agostino, H. R. Sweeney, Jacob Baige, L. Whitchead, A. A. Bonner, Cyrus Bosworth and D. C. Breckinridge, the best roadsters in the world will be seen in the rivalry will be great and the taste displayed of a high order.

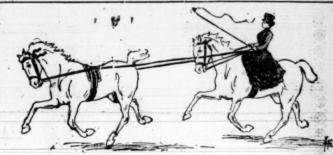

THE FASHION.

The fashionable hackney will be more fully in evidence than ever heretofore, and the class itself is represented by the state of the same of the sa horses of the highest type, such as Comet and his stable peers. All the stallions and mares are registered in the American Hackney Studbook, and every exhibitor has given his or her animal's registered number and pedi-gree. Thirty-five stallions have been entered and seventy mares. The crack among them is, of course, the stallion Fashion, winner of countless blue rib-

In the breeding class for trotters twenty-four highly-bred ones will compute. All the animals are standard there. Berserker, Acrobat, Forest fences 75 per cent. In the jumping class it is only performance over fences that will count. In the hunting and jumping will count. In the hunting and jumping classes, moreover, the champion cups, valued at $450, go to all first prize winners. The prizes for police horses are in money or plate, and the animals must be ridden by officers, appointments and uniforms also to be considered. The park police horses are to be shown at a walk, trot, canter and gallop, and their riders must go through such drill are exercise as the judges may require.

VEXING DETAILS. The only embarrassment in connection with the show so far is that the accommodation of stalls and loose boxes at the Madison Square Garden proves so limited that all New Yorkers are reso limited that all New Yorkers are requested to stable their horses at home. All the animals entered for exhibition, except those stabled outside and a few belated ones have been reported. They have been admitted in large numbers during the last few days, but not one will be allowed entrance after $ o'clock Monday morning. All horses and the removed by noon of the Sunday following, and the great show itself will have ended the evening before.

FAIR WOMAN AT THE HORSE SHOW. Opening of New York's Gayest Season-Lady Exhibitors' Dress, Fashion's Fad. Special C orrespondence of the Times.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—It is astonishing how the love of the equine race has grown among American women Not to know all the good points of a hackney, of a hunter or a "park hack." among a certain set of ultra-fashionables, is held to be very bad form indeed. What people of the beau monde prize nowadays in the horse is plenty of back and knee action; bodily conformation is almost a secondary matter, and as for color, anything will sell for carriage or saddle use, whereas in former years it was a rarriy to see any other color than bay. This writer can remember easily when there was but one riding school in New York, and that was a sort of social close corporation. Now there are a dozen between Fourteenth street and the Harlem River. Fifteen years ago when a lady appeared on a horse in Central Park she was followed by the admiring gaze of thousands; now a dozen pass you, as they gallop along the bridle path, and no one thinks of even looking at them Not to know all the good points of a thousands; now a dozen pass you, as they gallop along the bridle path, and no one thinks of even looking at them once, and it is marvelous how they have improved in their style of riding; they do not seem to be falling backwards out of the saddle, nor wear a half-agonized look as if they were conscious they might fall over-the animal's ears! Now they sit erect, with squared shoulders, head well up, the bridle rein in the proper place, horse and rider in thorough keeping and accord. And certainly a prettier or more exhilarating sight than a lot of pretty girls well mounted going at a smart canter on a fine morning in the park is nowhere to be seen.

But it is not only in riding that the women have gained so much more skill, but in driving also. Formerly when a woman did dare to drive her own trap in the park, she always held the reins as if she felt she must hold on like grim death, or the brute-he the reins as if she felt she must hold on like grim death, or the brute—he might be the quietest, most doelle Dobbin in the world—may take it into his head to run away Now, they know all about every description of trap and rig there is made, and to see them driving, with the hands well up in the air, and the whip held at the right angle, is not only diverting from one standpoint, but shows how much interest is taken in doing the correct thing in equine fashions.

who can indulge in such an expensive luxury. Next to owning one yourself, the best thing is to be invited-to eccupy one by, the courtesy: of your swell friends. And the dress at this New York Horse Show! It is perfectly safe to say that at no social function held in America can so many pretty and beautifully-dressed women be seen together. They are not only New York women, but Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Boston, Baltimore and many of the Western cities send their quota of belles to grace the occasion. The proper thing to wear before 6 o'clock is, of course, the tailor-made gown, and, if you wish to be very ultra, you may add a scarlet waistcoat-please de not call it a yest-and a long Newmarket coat with velvet collar and cuffs. In the evening the display of wraps and gowns is something wonderful. Each box party seems to vie with its neighbors in resplendent jewels, satins and velvets. It is a gallant sight, and from one standpoint it outshines even a gala night at the Metropolitan Operahouse.

seems to vie with its neighbors in resplendent jewels, satins and velvets. It is a gallant sight, and from one standpoint it outshines even a gala night at the Metropolitan Operahouse.

But it is not merely as an ornament that fair, woman shines at the New York Horse Show, for there are nearly fifty ladies who exhibit their own horses this season, a greater number, I believe, than ever before. Mrs. S. S. Howland exhibits in a greater number of classes than any other competitor of her own sex. Mrs. Howland is in classes 42, 45, 56, 58, 70, 72, 56, 87, 88, 91, 93, 94 and 97, fourteen in all. Most of these come under the head of saddlers and hunters. Mrs. Howland has a splendid knowledge of the horse, and altogether is one of the best judges of horse-flesh in the country; in fact, I do not know any man's opinion which is better worth having about a nag than this lady's. Mrs. G. L. Kernochan is another well-known society woman who exhibits freely, being in classes $7, 94 and 97. Other well-known exhibitors are Mrs. Foxhall P. Keene, whose husband is one of the best professional riders on the turf. Miss Helen M. Kelly, Mrs. E. Ladenburg, Mrs. H. B. Gilbert, Mrs. J. E. Smith-Hadden, Miss Louisa Bell, Miss E. T. Burk, Miss Kate Cary, Mrs. F. S. Ormiston and Misses Clara and Frances Ormiston, Mrs. A. R. Randolph Mrs. T. C. Rennard, Miss A. Sala, Miss Louisa Simmonds, Miss. Tailer, whose brother, T. Suffern Tailer, is well known as a clever taidem driver and writer on equine matters, Miss Marie Troesher, Mrs. Robert; A. Osborne, are among the well-known New York city women who have entered their horses at this year's show. Added to this formidable list are Miss Hope Goddard of Providence, R. I., Miss Eleanor Widener of Philadelphia, daughter of P. T. B. Widener, one of the traction magnates of the country; Mrs. Marion Story of Westchester, N. Y., Miss Bjård, Westbury, R. I.; Mrs. H. C. Alen, Bristol, R. L. Miss Edna Johnson, Greenwich, Comnand Mrs. V.; Miss Bjård, Westbury, R. I.; Mrs. H. C. Alen, Bristol, R. L. Miss

R. 1: Miss H. C. Alen Bristol, R. 1: Miss Edma Johnson, Greenwich, Conn.; and Mrk. Wolford Harting, of the same town.

It must not be thought that these ladies take only a perfunctory interest ladies take only a perfunctory they look after and watch every detail with the utmost thoroughness. Women, like Mrs. Howland, Miss Widener, Mrs. Kernochan, and the Miss Bird, Miss Widener, Mrs. Kernochan, and the Brothers and the points in the world of the design one of these returns the properties of the sold and bad points of the competition of the world. Among the younger women who hunt the best known are perhaps Miss Mabel Metcalf and Miss Lucille Alger. The former not only follows the hounds at the Rockaway meets, but has also awritten a clever little book, "How Women. Should Ride," which appeared under the norm de plume of "C. de Hurst," which is a clever adaptation of Cedariporst, a fashionable resort on Long Island and where her father has a country place. Aliss Alger is a radiantly beautiful girl, and sits a horse like a man. In fact, she and her horse like a man. In fact, she and her horse are one. On pedigrees she is an authority, and can discourse with any breeder in the land. Some two years, ago at Newmarket she bought a thoroughbred 2 years old, which took her facty, for some 100 gaineas; shortly afterwarf-the horse took lung fever and came near dying, but Miss Alger nursed the brute through and brought him over to this country, and began to ride him for her own use. The horse was so splendily handled and cared for that Miss Alger was offered $25,000 for him by a prominent breeder of thoroughbreds and felt sure of capturing first prize in this class with the son of Buccaneer and Flora. A few days ago Miss Alger was exercising him on the roads about Great Neck, L. I. near where she resided, when the horse shied at some men repairing the road, gave his beautiful young mistress a terrible fall, and striking himself on the head, died within in ah heur. Miss Alger is almost inconsilable for her loss. Although there are haif a dozen horses in her stable not one of them can take the place of her prizelest thoroughbred. So here is one entry that is missed from this year's show, and one young woman who will not carry off a blue rosette.

The horse show is, of course, a fad among women who really know nothing about herses at all, but it fosters and encourages a delightful and health-giving him of the page of women in and out of society.

PRETTY DANCES.

Each season sees something new in the line of parlor dances, and this year it is the "solo dance," or the dance which is danced alone that is the most popular and considered newest; many society girls are already adepts, having had a year's amnsement with the steps and poses, behind closed doors and drawn curtains.

All the dances, like many fashions in dress, have their origin on the stage, where they have the advantage of tricks of light and scenic effects and so be flash of the diamond.

This arrangement is not difficult, neither is it expensive, for the batteries are very simple, and are now frequently sold for just such uses as this. The glass globes are scarcely larger than marbles, so that for those who are willing to go to the trouble, the jewel dance becomes something easy to arrange and very satisfactory for a parlor dance because so very effective.

THE BUTTERFELD DANCE.

THE BUTTERFLY DANCE. The butterfly dance is another which is appropriate for the evening entertainment of a party of people in the parlor. It may be danced by several young ladies, and be the feature of the evening, or it may be merely an incl-dent, with a single dancer, following the german or the parlor minuet.

After the question of hanging and draping has been settled, there comes the embroid-ering of butterflies upon the dress. The parlor butterfly dance is like a picture with only enough action to make the wings "fly." The music for the wings must be picture with only enough action to make the wings "fly." The music for the dance is a waitz and the wings must be so twirled and managed that there is a continual suggestion of the butterfly wings. It is easily learned and, with a little experimenting, any young ladies who are graceful pupils of terpischore will have learned the trick in a few hours. And for an evening entertainhours. And for an evening entertain-ment there is nothing prettier nor more restful and pleasing to the eye. THE FLOWER LADY.

At the germans and cotillions a feature is now made of the fair lady who is selected to distribute the ribbons and award the favors and prizes.

She must be seated behind a gailytrimmed table, and must look as picturesque as possible. He mission is merely to be beautiful, to say charming things and add to the features of the evening by making herself a treat to behold.

Lillian Russell posed as "the rose lady" for a rosebud cotillon given by be some Chicago ladies, and you may be sure that she was very fair to look

The rose lady is seated before a table laden with lovely roses and bright rib-bons, and at her back there rests a pillow of roses as if placed there for the comfort of the rose lady, if she were to overcome with the sweetness of the flowers and fall asleep.

When not busy awarding her beautiful wares, the rose lady "does the ornamental" and is an exquisite tableau. And this tableau feature to the cotillon is to be another of the novelties of the season's dances. In all the minuets, and the more stately of the payer.

to gay or from lively to stately.

THE SKIPPING ROPE DANCE. The skipping rope dance is very popular now for young girls not too old to actually skip with the rope, but for older ones it is not quite so pretty. Al-though as a little dance to be introduced in the middle of a dancing evening at birthday or other home celebration, it can never be out of place, even when danced by the older of the young peo-

The music for the skipping rope dance is best a march, as that is slow enough not to allow the dance to degenerate into a frolic; and the rope is handled daintily as if it were the wings of a handsome dancing skirt and not a mere rope. At each step the foot passes over the rope and the step is the same as the one which the children practice on the sidewalk, and is between a jump and a walk—a "hop, skip and a jump" com-

Seven little girls in accordion skirts of navy blue silk, blue Eton jackets and scarlet shirts danced the skipping rope dance this last season at the closing exercises of a summer school of dancing and won unlimited applause, for the ef-fect was as pretty as can be immagined.

The style of wearing the hair at all these dances is as flowing as possible without being conspicuously so. If the hair is curly, or can be curled, it may well be worn loose and confined by only a few jewelled pins. A heavy "bang" should not be worn, as it is apt in the dance to fall over the face and present a dishevelled appearance. Curls, or a low knowledge and confined appearance. low knot apparently careless, are prettiest. But on no account must the pins come out or a disarranged look come to the tresses no matter how dressed. Better to braid and band them than have that happen. THE ANGEL DANCE.

The angel dance is like the butterfly n some respects, only the gowns are pure white, and there are double wings made by placing draperies to hang from the shoulder as well as under the arms

The "angel" flutters to waltz time and masters the art of the quick glide which carries her rapidly across the floor with-out visible steps. The draperies are of the finest sheen and flutter, even with the motions of the fans in the audience. The hands in this dance are kept busy managing the gauzy material and are not visible at all. The neck is dressed high and the head has wings upon it of jeweled pins and glistening gauze lace.

The angel tableaux are very pretty.

Let several young ladies join hands and dance the new deaux temps across the room and back, giving in a slightly exaggerated way the steps and keeping exact time to the music and the effect will be found charming. the season's dances. In all the minuets, and the more stately of the parlor dances; there is this season a "hold" provided in the music to give the dancers time to pause and remain for just a moment in very graceful postures. Those who have seen the first act of "Romeo and Juliet," where the young couple meet for the first time, will remember the lovely tableaux which were part of the minuet which was being danced.

The tableau is provided for in the butterfly dance, for at the change in the position of the butterfly's wings, the music grows low and there is only a faint flutter of motion. In the jewel dance there is a tableau, as the lights strains of the familiar "Dancing in the Barn."

What made the dance prettier was that the young ladies were of different types of beauty. One was a very red blonde, another was so golden her hair glistened, the third was so light that alone she seemed to lack color, and the two others were very brunette and chestnut brown. It was a treat to see their graceful steps and laughing faces. and they were encored until they re-fused to respond again and fied for ref-uge to the verandas.

Every fall there are new dances, just as there are new books and new gowns. But this year the round dances and the state balls, where the intricate square dances are danced, will have to be very aftractive and the figures very beauti fully executed; if they are going to leave as pleasant a memory-picture as the "solo dance" for simple parlor enter-tainment. "That is true."

Capt. Ned thrust a handkerchief out of a port-hole. The Indian turned to the British general.

The boys took the barricades from the door and threw it open. They had placed all the rifles in one corner and were ready to march forth.

not abated.

The mothers had put the youngest children to sleep, and now with wakeful eyes they waited in the darkness for the foe.

At 10 o'clock a bright moon in its third quarter made its appearance. This gave some light and enabled the boys to see the outlines of the trees.

Suddenly one of the young sentries, looking through a loop-hole, discerned moving figures where a moment before he had seen but waving grass. He sig-

Then he shook the little thing and rolled it about until it could crawlagain. The boys ran away.

Now, wherever you see Pedro lying down sunning himself you are very apton see this kitten snuggled up somewhere near him.

This gave some light and enabled the boys to see the outlines of the trees. Suddenly one of the young sentries, looking through a loop-hole, discerned moving figures where a moment before had seen but waving grass. He signalled Capt. Ned and they watched the figures together.

"The enemy have come!" said the boys as he turned back and faced the women.

At length daylight broke over the sleepless little garrison, and then were anxious eyes at the loop-holes.

At this time all the men of the settlement were at Fort Meigs, which they had helped detend against the allied forces, consequently only boys were left to defend the families.

The boys had strengthened the cabin in various ways, for it was the intention at the first sign of danger, to make it a common retreat. When their work was done the place seemed capable of resisting considerable numbers.

"In truth we shall," was the reply.

"Look across the clearing to where the big tree stands."

Capt. Ned looked and saw moving there a dark mass which confirmed his fears. It looked like more than fifty men marching with compactness, and when the signal was repeated and answered by one of the hiding braves near the fort, the new enemy came to a hait.

ANOTHER INSTANCE.

The marked efficiency of the new method of treatment in general catarrhal derangement and folsoning of the entire system is apily illustrated in the case of Miss B. Gonden of 881 South Los Angeles street, who says:

MISS B. GONDEN.

"For about eight years I have been troubled with chronic catarrh, but the past two years it became so much worse that life was almost a burden to me.
"I most always got up in the morning with a dull headache, mostly above the eyes, My hearing was impaired; sometimes roaring in ears, nostrils were stopped up, mucous dropped into my throat, and a watery discharge from the nose, which was very annoying. The past year I had a very annoying cough, some pains through the chest and distress in stomach, Also suffered from loss of sleep at night and a tired feeling during the day.

"Being advised by friends, I decided to try Dr. De Monco and associates. Now I have nothing to complain of; really, I feel like myself again. Have no Peaniaches, sleep splendidly, and no more trouble with my stomach. I called on a young girl yesterday who was wearing an especially charming gown, and she had made it herself. It was of yellow crepe cloth, lined with yellow eider down. The yoke was made yellowelder down. The yoke was made of some dainty figured fibric, which she had cut by a regular yoke pattern, making it slightly pointed back and front. Taking two widths of goods for the front and two for the back, she had boxplaited them on to the yoke, with a wide heading; and around the hem she had put two plaitings of pale lilac rib-bon. To do away with the care and packing of soap, disagreeable and unmanageable after contact with water her maid keeps the toilet-case supplied with tiny soap balls. For these the gennine old "Crown Windsor" soap is the toundation, as my lady distrusts modern chemistry and all its compounds and distillations. The process is simple.

Several cakes of Windsor are reduced to very thin shavings and put into a glass jar. Just sufficient perfumed toiglass jar. Just sufficient perfumed toilet water is added to reach all the

No doubt Jupiter upset ambrosia the celestial draperies of Juno when the gods gave crush receptions—certain it is that the men of all ages have had this bad luck.

Everybody knows the programme in the supper-room at crush receptions and balls. The unhappy escort chases a bit of salad for fifteen minutes. Then she wants a cup of coffee or some-thing more active, and he chases and returns with two glasses of champagne.

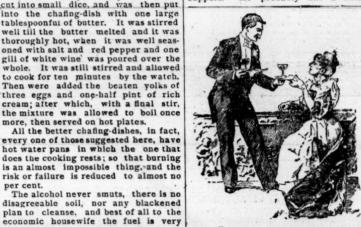

Then comes the rub. If each holds, a plate with one hand and a glass with the other how will either eat anything? If eating is to be done at all the champagne glass must be emptied at once, or else set on some ledge, or under a chair, or in a palm jardiniere; and then he or she manages to tip over one or both glasses, and as likely as not it is or both glasses, and as likely as not it is some other woman's gown that is ru-ined by the champagne douche.

One night this New Yorker was out

I never had beened or it trained to the say of the strength of the say of t heart began to beat violently, for a memory arose, a memory that has haunted me for many months.

Last January I was sitting with some sailor companions in a private room of the "Albergo di Tasso," at Castellamare, near Naples. With us we had a queer, old chap, a former surgeon in the British army, who, however, had gone to the bad, and made a living by all kinds of more or less disreputable occupations. His incurable appetite for strong liquor, and his inyeterate habit of gambling, had ruined him. One of my companions was Fred Howard—at least that is the name by which I knew him—and he was a splendid fellow, kind and noble in all his impulses, except about for three or four days in the month, oddly enough, always soon following the appearance of the sickle of the new moon. He was not a somnambulist, and full-mough did not affect him, nor was his disease—for so I think I must call it—confined to the hours of the night. Whether it was bright sunlight or dark, he was utterly changed in character during the period mentioned, but his actions were strangest, it is true, when he happened to see the sickle of the new moon. During the period mentioned, he ceased to be himself. He became another person. For perhaps, more correctly, he seemed to impersonate more than one person. To was as if he were acting parts. What he would do on such occasions was perfectly incalculable, but it was never what he would have done, when he was himself. The captain of the vessel in which we came from Naples to Chill, after a journey of several months, at first used to grow angry at Fred's behavior, but when he came to understand, his weakness, he treated him will, great kindness, especially as Fred, on all other days, except during that finfortunate period of the month, was an excellent sailor.

As Fred and myself were special ohums and slept in neighboring hammooks, I had a good oportunity of watching him, and what struck me peculiarly during his mental aberrations was that from time to time he would hold conversations with an imaginary

Tounded.

We were sitting, as I have said above, in the Albergo di Tasso and had quite a jolly time guying old Wharton—that was the name of the dissipated ex-surgéon—when the latter exclaimed: "Shut up, young rascal, or I'll put you all to sleep!" A boisterous laugh greeted the remark.

"All right, Wharton," I said, "if you are a hypnotist give us a sign so that we may believe in you; you can commence with Rogers and make him tell his love tales to you." Rogers, a vain, young fellow, fell readily in with the proposal, and the doctor began to make preparations for what we all believed to be a great fake. To our astonishment, however, Rogers really succumbed to the strokes of the surgeon, and apparently fell sound asleep, telling the most amusing things of his amours with regard to which Wharton questioned him. Many of us, nevertheless, were not continued and seed.

SALARIES OF LEGISLATORS.

Lawmaking is Not a Lucrative Profession in France or Germany.

In Germany the members of the Reichstag receive no payment, but are provided with free passes on the German railways, says the London Daily News. The same practice obtains in the case of the members of the "Herrenhaus," or upper house of the Prussian legislature; but those of the lower house receive an allowance—Diaten or Taggedder— of 15 shillings a day during the session, as well as traveling expenses. France pays each of her Senators and Deputies $1800 a year, minus a deduction of $1 a month for refreshments—pour la buvette. Moreover, the members of both assemblies travel first-class stayed first-class throughout the year on every line. Clearly, there must be less lucrative professions in France than that of Senator or Deputy. In Austria members of the lower house of Parliament receive $4 a day and traveling expenses, and in Hungary $1330 a year, including an allowance for rent. If, however, we would attain the full realization of the radical ideal in this matter we must cross the Atlantic and contemplate the system which prevails in the United States, where each Senator, Representative and delegate in Congress receives a salary of $5000 per annum. Washington may verily be termed the El Dorado of the professional politician. when the converted by the converted and especially Fred was incredulous, so he proposed to be the next victim. Soon, however, we all wished that we had not taken part in the performance, for when it was over we felt certain that we had lent a hand in making sport of a sick man, who might seriously suffer from the consequences. The doctor had put Rogers to sleep with the customary manual strokes, well known to those who have witnessed hypnotic performances, but when he approached Fred he entirely changed his method. Jumping suddenly toward the unsuspecting victim he simply cried with a fierce tone: "Sleep!" and we hardly trusted our eyes when Fred's arms suddenly relaxed, and he sat limp and motionless in the chair. "He will do," said Wharton, "now what shall I ask him?" For a moment I hesitated, but curiosity got the best of me, and I replied: "Ask him about Lizzie."

"Tell us what Lizzie is doing," said the doctor. "Lizzie," said Fred, in a slow, melancholy voice. "Why, she is in prison. You know, they think she murdered them, but they cannot prove it, and she will soon be free again." "Who murdered them "queried the doctor. "I did, of course," came the reply. "On August 3, last year, I went to see Lizzie. We had met a few days previous after many years of separation. She had told me not to come to the house, as Emma knew that I was in town, and she would give us away. But, that night I made up my mind that I must see her. The stars were shining bright, and when I looked up, I saw among them the sickle of the new moon. I at once knew that Lizzie was thinking of me, and that she wanted me. It was the same sickle that was in the heavens when I first met her, many years before. When I had come within three blocks of her parents' house, I saw a hatchet lying near a garden fence. And then I heard Lizzie say as plain as I hear you. 'Oh! I hate them. If it was not for them I could marry Fred. If I had a hatchet I belleve I would kill them.' When I heard people talking in the parior, the door was half ajar, but I coul Advertising Dees Wonders.

(Lowell Daily Courier:) Advertising does wonders when intelligently carried on, and backed up by good business management. Take a certain concern in this city, for example. A year ago they were paying out large sums of money for advertising, which was placed through an agency, and no more attention paid to it. The plates used were old ones, and were run day after day, without change. And even in sections where the advertisements were placed no effort was made to supply the trade with goods. As a result, the concern was going steadily into the ground, and all the money paid for advertising was wasted. Then a new management took hold, and made a decided change. New and bright advertisements were gotten out, and a course of systematic advertising entered upon. All was done through reputable newspapers, and in accordance with a carefully mapped out plan. Then, as fast as a certain section of the country was covered, the goods were placed on sale. All this bore good fruit, and this concern is unable to keep up with its orders, and the stockholders will get back a good deal of what they have lost, besides a good dividend on their investment. swindling in the short run sometimes pays, but swindling in the long run never has paid, and never will pay. There is business principle about honesty which defies dishonesty, and which stands as an immutable law of nature, as sure as taxation.

There is no objection to a certain amount of exaggeration. The public and the majority of ratail expect it, and the majority of retail stores are obliged to use it, and exagger-ation is not necessarily misrepresenta-tion, and strong statements are not al-ways lies. "Fire, smoke, and water" the poor fellow have crazy dreams. Wake him up, and not a word when he awakes."

The doctor smiled sardonically. "Awake," he said, approaching Fred, who looked pale and haggard when he opened his eyes. None of us told him of what had happened. We knew his mental weakness, and we all felt that the hypnotizing had simply produced in his brain one of his monthly nightmares. "You see, doctor," he said, smiling, "your tricks do not work with me. I knew that my will would be too strong for your hypnotic experiments."

"Quite so," replied Wharton, with a peculiar expression on his face, "of course I do not succeed with every-body."

Three days later, it was on the 21st of January, last year—how could I ever forget that date—Fred and I were in Naples taking a walk at night time along the lovely Chiajon. Fred looked suddenly up at the sky. The sickle of the new moon was brilliantly shining right, above a distant hilltop. All at once he grew deadly pale. "Lizzie hates me," he exclaimed, and ere I could prevent it he had drawn a revolver from his hip-pocket and lay, dead at my feet. He was buried in a corner outside of the Campo Santo-a few days afterward. Suicides are not permitted to sleep in consecrated ground.

by the public.

The honest man cannot make money if he appears to be dishonest.

Appearance is of as much importance as fact itself.

There never was a time since the be-ginning of business when such good op-portunity was offered the retail merchant to be honest and to appear honest, as at the present day.
Fully one-half of the extensive local advertisers everywhere are liars, and the public so consider them.

Honesty today, is originality, and ex-treme honesty will shine like a star in the advertising firmament.

THOSE 50 c.

HOSE

We haven't a single pair of the genuine Grescent Mills hose left, because the 300 pairs we had were sold yesterday. We have some Circle Mills hose at 50 cents—not so the Circle bose is the best hose can find.

Restful Chairs

The reason we are selling the easiest, handsomest and finest parlor chairs for $32 each is because we bought too many of these chairs last season, and we would rather have the money than the chairs.

They Fade

Distinctly understand the Cres-cent Cashmeres we are selling for 50 cents a yard fade. The colors are not strong enough to stand, but they fade all over, and when they are faded you simply have a little lighter color, almost as pretty as it was in the first place. We wouldn't self these cashmeres for less than a dollar a yard if they didn't fade.

Homely Rugs

One hundred rugs of disagreeable pattern—rugs most folks won't buy. We have put them all in one room, where they look just as ugly as they are. Some folks like odd patterns, particularly if they can buy the rugs for just one half what they cost. The wear is in 'em, and warmth is in 'em, and the kind of pattern some folks don't like—but some of them don't seem homely to us, and very likely wouldn't seem homely to you.

Successful advertising does not mean over-originality, but is doing something a little different from anyone else. The honest man has, apparently, a per-fectly clear road before him, and if he goes over it as he should, he will gather from both sides profitable customers. It is suggested that it will pay the majority of advertisers to go even to the extreme in honorable, straightfor-ward statements, for the extreme will be met by the public, and the honest advertiser will get the business. It is useless to show examples of ex-aggerated statements, for every local paper is full of them. I have simply attempted to present briefly a few ideas of extreme honesty, which may be of some benefit, in a suggestive way, to the local merchant.

Districts in Which Witches are Still Regarded With the Utmost Respect.
(Manchester Mercury:) Superstition is by no means a defunct anomaly in the customs and characteristics of some of our smaller towns or villages. First and foremost of West country superstition comes an entire and thorough belief in witchcraft. Every West country village has an old woman who is a good deal more feared than the village policeman.

lage has an old woman who is a good deal more feared than the village policeman.

No one dares to contradict her will in anything. If she takes a fancy to the finest cabbage in a man's garden she may cut it as if it grew in her own. Though it should be the very pride of his heart he must not try to stop her proceedings; if he does a far worse thing is sure to befall him. His pig will be seized with sudden and deadly sickness, or his daughter's hair will fall off, or a shower of rain will spoil his hay just when it is about to be carried. The West country term for a witch's power is "overlooking."

If a witch has evil feelings toward you she is said to "overlooking."

If a witch has evil feelings toward you she is said to "overlook you." One indubitable sign by which you may know a witch is to bring her into the church and to make her stand with her face toward the east. No real witch can do it for a moment; however she may strive she will stand as fignly fixed as a frozen weathercock. No West country farmer living near a witch will doubt the cause when his horses or cattle fall ill.

Next to their belief in witches is their faith in the power of a seventh son or seventh daughter to cure diseases. It is in vain that the clergyman preaches, that the schoolmaster teaches, that the parish doctor remonstrates, the West country matron bears off her sickly baby in triumph to the man or woman in the neighboring village who happens to have been born a seventh son or seventh daughter.

These privileged individuals have but to touch the diseased part and the cure is certain and immediate. There are also some wise women who can cure various complaints with a charm which they speak over the patient. In the neighborhood of Exmoor these things are far more trusted in than all the medical faculty put together.

NOTEWORTHY MUSICAL EVENT concert at the Universalis Church Friday evening drew a large and appreciative audience and served to formally introduce to the Pasadena public Miss Augustine Berger, pianist, and Mrs. Washington Berry and Mrs. C. Williams, vocalists of Los Angeles. Forest Cheney and Miss June Reed are both well known from their many former appearances.

The concert was a distinct advance from anything they have heretofore given, and was in all respects from first to last, a meritorious performance. Miss Berger is one of the most artistic players in Southern California. She has Church Friday evening drew a large and

Her playing of the "Etincelle," by Moszkowski, was beatifully done and enthusiastically en-"Etincelle," by Moszkowski, was beatifully done and enthusiastically encored. Her piano accompaniment reached a high plane of very finished playing in the Gade somet that opened the programme. In this piece the opening movement respecially was delightfully given by Miss Berger and Mr. Cheney. Of the singers Mrs. Williams has a pleasing soprano, clear and sweet, but some of her notes lack power in the upper register. Her singing of the Schubert serenade was superior to her first number. Mrs. Washington Berry is the possessor of a rich, well-trained contraito, and is certainly one of the most enjoyable singers who has ever appeared in Pasadena. She was recalled several times after her Lachner number. Mr. Cheney and Miss June. Reed increased their reputation as musical artists. Miss Reed gave a scholarly interpretation of a somewhat severely classical Beethoven romance, wherein a purity of tone and delicacy of feeling were artistically combined. Mr. verely classical Beethoven romance, wherein a purity of tone and delicacy of feeling were artistically combined. Mr. Cheney played conscientiously the difficult sonata, and later "Vieux Temps Caprice," and responding to double recalls. His playing shows steady improvement and continued artistic growth. Miss Lillo Kerse rendered capable assistance to the vocalists as accompanist.

The Benefits of a Thorough System of Irrigation-Growth of Fullerton-News Mention.

When the wind blows over from the lesert, and the air gets dry and harsh, farmers in the valley begin to feel anxious for rain, when really there is no occasion whatever for un ness among them. The Santa Valley is, indeed, a fortunate locality It is in such a state of cultivation, and der such a system of irrigation, that matters but little, with the great najority of farmers whether it rains or not in the valley. The melted snow from the vast mountain ranges to the north and east, furnishes an abundance of water for irrigation purposes, and with the extensive system of irrigation in use over the valley, the residents are, to a great extent, independent It is a fact that land in Southern Cali-fornia, with a first-class water-right fornia, with a first-class water-r is more productive, by far, than which is dependent altogether upor annual rainfall. This assertion no doubt, seem preposterous to "tenderfoot," who has never known other way to coax the tender growth of the products of the soil to maturity than by the chance rainfall of the season and strict attention to the cultireason and strict attention to the cultivation of the soil. No person dying from thirst can be permanently revied by careful nursing and nothing more. Neither can a tender plant be brought to maturity alone by cultivation, be it ever so scientific and practical. tute fact, that artificial moisture ad-ministered just when the condition of the product requires it, is far more preferable, and of much more value to e product, taken the season thre than the moisture created alone by the hance rainfall of the season. This erry advantage is one of the principal eatures of this southern county, and oes a great deal toward establishing its reputation as being a county of won-derful and varied productions. It is quite natural to expect the very of results from the soil when sisture is created and governed by hand of a practical husbandman. To this distinctive feature add an in comparable climate, and it is not to be wondered that the soil of Orange county and southern Camorina is astonishingly productive, and that it is valued so highly by the industrious and enterprising people from all over the world, who come here and see for them-selves what the country is like, and what its probable future is when properly developed. While other places are making advances in the matter of street-car lines, Ontario is not lagging behind. A scheme has been on foot for some time to transform the Euclid avenue "gravity" line into an electric line, and, at the same time, to have an electric light plant to furnish lights for the city. Negotiations are being made with outside capital to put a plant in at the head of the famous avenue. Water has already been piped, and it is under sufficient pressure to run a dynamo large crough to furnish both light and power. The Ontario and San Antonio Heights Radiway Company expect to extend the line to Chino. Fifty thousand dollars of outside capital can be induced to come to Ontario, and the road would then soon be in working order. The citizens are greatly interested in the scheme, and hope to see it pushed to an early completion.

It is but natural that a great many of the people of Ontario would be more interested in the building of this read than of getting a road to Pomona. Juvenile Catholic Society.

A number of boys gathered yesterday afternoon at Cathedral Haft to organize a society under the patronage of St. Aloysius. The officers elected by vote are as follows: Master Thomas Conway, president, Master Joseph Bernard, vice-president; Master Philip L. Sage, secretary; Master Wilfred L. Sage, treasurer. Members of committee, Philip L. Sage, Eugene Conway, Fred Reardon. A Smooth Rascal Detectives Auble and Benson arrested Fred Sutton late yesterday afternoon on a warrant from Pasadena. Sutton was employed in a business house at the latter place, and when the

THE FAMOUS HINO RANCH!

MR. RICHARD GIRD, Owner.

AT PRIVATE SALE.

In 10, 20, 40 and 80 acre farms, to suit purchasers, on credit terms at low rate of interes.

The Property We Offer

Comprises the well-known Ch no Ranch, in the center of which is the Town of China, on the fac of the Southern Pacific Raffroad, about three miles south of Pomona and Ontario. Surrounding the poperty is the valley portion of the Chino Ranch, comprising 16,000 cares iring north and east of Chino Creek, subdivided into ten-acre tracts, which have a gradual decline toward the South and Southwest, giving ample natural drainage for suc-

gradual decline toward the South and Southwest, giving ample natural drainage for successful cultivation.

In 1881 the Beet Sugar Company was organized and the Refinery built and pot in operation at China, in a central portion in reference to the property. The result obtained from the operation of the Factory for the few years past shows a remarkable degree of adaptability of the soil to the successful cultivation of the Sugar Beet, both in amount of production and in her percentage of saccharine matter, and also in the efficient caracity of the manufacturing plant. The factory handled during the present season of 1881, 1000 for both the manufacturing plant. The factory handled during the present season of 1881, 1000 for the entire cast paign, covering a period of nearly four months. It is proposed now to increase the capacity of the Factory by the erection of an additional building and machinery to suit the requirements of increasing production. The returns for the present campaign have been a total yield of over 15,000,000 pounds of sugar, which have been shipped out as crude sugar to be reflued elsewhere.

Under a direct and specific contract between Mr. Gird and the Chino Valley Beet Sugar Comerny, a corporation which instituted and operates the beet Sugar industry, they agreed to purchase from Mr. Gird or his successors all the beets grown on the ranch for years to come, and at the present date, about November 1st, 1892, before the commencement of the next season, a fixed price is established that the factory will pay for the beets at maturity next season. This insures the planter in the market for his crop, and with the price that is fixed, before the takes any risk in the matter or makes the first move towards turning over the ground.

Possibly there is no other branch of industry where calculations for future results can turning over the ground.

Possibly there is no other branch of industry where calculations for future results can be made so readily or so correctly calculated upon, and returns realized in so short a time as in the cultivation of the Sugar Beet under such auspices.

While speaking particularly in regare to the important industry of beet growing for the manufacture of sugar, estimates of general fruits should not be lost sight of, as a great portion of the land is especiallo adapted to

CITRUS FRUITS AND DECIDUOUS TREES.

Orange groves planted on portions of the ranch are coming forward, and olives, figs, aoricots, princes, pomegranates and berries, in fact Carlfornia fruits of all kinds, seem indigenous to the soil. It is also demonstrated that carlo being a soil and attain a high degree of prefection.

The townsite of Chino, located at a convenient point with reference to all portions of the ranch, is a flourishing California town, with telegraph, telephone and express offices, schools and churches. Means of communication and transportation are ample. The Southern Pacific Rairroad runs its main line direct into Chino, and is four miles distant from Pomona and Ontario, on the main overland line, and in addition is the proposed extension which is now assured from Pomona, through Chino to South Riverside and Eishnore. The following are a few of the advantageous leatures of the Chino Valley. First, the cultivation of the Sugar Beet, which insures a profit: fifteed tons is an average crop, but twenty tons is not unusual, which is received at the factory at a fixed price of $4.50 per ton, which during this present season of 1893 has average the grower from $35 to $50 per ton, which during this present season of 1893 has average the grower from $35 to $50 per ton, and clean above all expense of working the ground, planting and harvesting the crop and delivering at the factory.

We intite land-seekers generally who are desiring to secure profitable investments, to examine this valuable property, which offers health, profit or investment.

Four passenger trains in and out of Chino every day. We invite correspondence.

Do you want to buy a lot in the

TRACT?

That's the question that now confronts you, and that's the question the importance of which is indicated by the size of the interrogation point placed on top of these lines. But, perhaps, it is an unnecessary question, for, of course, you do want to buy a lot in the Alexandre Weill Tract, in fact, all who have seen its beautiful location and informed themselves in regard to our wonderfully easy terms and our low prices, except a few of the Los Angeles "four hundred," who would rather pay ten times as much for poorer igts on Grand Avenue and other fashionable streets, are just aching to buy a lot in our Tract. "They all do it, and they never rue it!"

If you have already bought a lot in the Alexandre Weill Tract, remember one cannot do, or receive, a good deed too often, and

BUY ANOTHER LOT.

BUY ANOTHER LOT.

If you do not know the Tract yet, don't delay, but become acquainted with the property at once. Take the electric car, and is ride out to the corner of Eighth Street and central Avenue, then take a stroil around the tract on the miles of cement sidewalks that line all our streets.

Examine the numerous improvements which are being erected on the tract.

Examine the sandy soil that forms no mud in the rainest weather.

Examine the flowers that bloom in all the yards (not only in the spring tra-la, but also at all other seasons of the year).

Examine the magnificent view of the Sterra Madre Mountains and inhale a few cubic feet of our invigorating air (free to all); then call upon the undersigned and get the particulars in regard to our celeb ated Non-interest-bearing Installment Contract for the sale of lots upon monthly payments, not larger than those you are at present Throw-ing Away' in the shape of rent.

Remember, rent once paid is lost to you forever, while in return for your payments under contract to purchase a lot in the Alexandre Weill Tract, you receive not only a full equivalent for your money, but also the probable advance in real estate over present bed-rock prices.

To recur to our question: "Do you want to buy a lot in the Alexandre Weill Tract?" I wish to say, that your affirmative reply together with the customary deposit on account of purchase money should be left at my office without delay.

developed in the subject as he lowers his head, the eyes deep set, the jaw red and more pronounced with vermillion as the dog ages, the tear cups large, the lower part pendulous. The ears, a most important feature, should have very little erectile tissue, and should hang limply, like damp cloths. When seated, with head erect, these sometimes drop to the point of the shoulder. The brisket should be full, the dewlap sharply divided and silky in texture. The keel, as the dog advances in age, lowers itself between the legs, appearing to shorten them. Dogs should stand from 25 to 27 inches. In color these hounds are black and tan, though in a former time white was found on the body. Traces now appear on the feet and occasionally on the breast. It is very rare to see white markings on the body, though but a generation ago it was not unusual to find small white spots upon the back. The last trace of this today is a gray ridge overlapping the backbone an inchest the see was the rest of the today is a gray ridge overlapping the backbone an inchest.

The above applies accurately with the exception of the phrase "crook-kneed." This recalls the Talbot, which some regard the progenitor of the bloodhound. The mellow voice of the St. Hubert is one of the chiefest points of attractiveness. Its great richness is due to the abundance of loose skin surrounding the mouth, which enables him to make when baying a bellows-like reservoir, the sound being emitted with the lips half closed.

Its great richness is due to the abundance of loose skin surrounding the mouth, which enables him to make when baying a bellows-like reservoir, the sound being emitted with the lips half closed.

It is a kennel of these hounds, when heard at a distance, their voices oft-times striking chords, is remarkably melodious. Single hounds, when trailing, are apt to run mute, but in the pack they generally give tongue. The baying shows as much individuality as any other characteristic, and, according to the temperament of the subject, will this effort at expression be buoyant and vociferous, subdued. mellifluous or plaintive. One writer says:

"I know nothing more delightful than

Fortunately, at a time when neglect had well nigh lost to the world the abolest of his race—the St. Hubert hound—one man in England, having the sole remaining pack which was known as a straining pack which was known as the sole remaining pack which was known as the sole remaining pack which was known as a strain ago. The renaissance of the breed is, therefore, in its infancy. It appears this hound is majestic and dismifed; his deep flews, heavily wrinkled forchead, sunken eye and drooping lid exposing the red haw, create a thoughtful and throw about him a refined glamor of antiquity.

Some time ago the writer had the privilege, in company with Dr. Sydney Turner, the well-known authority on hounds, and judge for the principal shows in England, and Mr. Edwin Brough, the foremost breeder of blood-hounds in the world, to witness an exhibition of trailing at the county seat of its september. A thick haze lay in the valley and the breath of air which might have released imprisoned nature from this spell had not come the entire, day. The ground, which had not feit the sustance of the whole field. We watched him threading his way through pasture and swamp and across a stream which demanded a runing thence over fences and stone walls and through cover, leaving no watched him threading his way through pasture and swamp and across a stream which demanded a runing thence over fences and stone walls and through cover, leaving no watched him threading his way through pasture and swamp and across a stream which demanded a runing thence over fences and stone walls and through cover, leaving no cover the special proposed to the special proposed to the proposed to the special proposed to the proposed to the subject of his expected pursuer. Half an hour having been granted him the signal was waved from the klin land the hound released from the kennel. It was Champion to the conditions of the task which had been proposed to the task which had been proposed t often discover criminals when other means would only end in failure."

The St. Hubert bloodhound has long been used in this capacity by game keepers guarding preserves; almost every keeper in England having one or two with him on his walk. The dogs seem to know that their business is merely to arrest the offender and not to execute judgment upon him. In this respect they are as entirely distinct from the Cuban and Siberian bloodhound as they are in appearance. The undesirable reputation of these savage brutes with the theatrical setting furnished by the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," is unfortunately applied to the innocent St. Hubert hound, whose gentleness and well-bred manners have won for him the universal epithet, "the gentleman's dog."

Mr. George Glazier of Salem, Mass., one of the few breeders in this country, was so exercised over a law established by the State Legislature compelling owners of bloodhounds to muzzle them when taken on the street, that he ap-owners of bloodhounds to muzzle them when taken on the street, that he applied for a repeal. The law had been framed after the attack on a little child by a Danish hound in Boston. The most conclusive argument before the Legislative Committee which Mr. Glazier made, was the exhibition of a couple of his hounds. Their beautiful countenances and kindly and dignified maners and appearance at once made conners and appearance at once made con-verts of all; and in order to satisfy their a law as applied to St. Hubert blood-hounds was well founded, they caused the hounds to be brought into the Sen-ate chamber and placed before the members on the rostrum. It is needless to say their dumb appeal was convinc-

The writer's first visit to the Wynd-yate kennels of England was one of rapid inspection.

Somewhat later in the day I passed yate kennels of England was one of rapid inspection.

Somewhat later in the day I passed along the road, preceding by a few minutes the sortie of the dogs in their afternoon walk. As they issued from the gate on to the highway they must have recognized my trail, for despite the efforts of the "whips," the whole pack of thirty broke away and came down the dusty pike in full cry. I confess there was just enough in the situation to make me long for the other side of the fence or the lower branches of a cherry tree which stood near by. Although the mild character of the St. Hubert had been thoroughly noted when seen in the kennel, there still were chances that with the order of the chase and disproportion of numbers added, the reputation they were supposed to maintain might in this special case be ignored and I might prove that exceptional victim which would but little discredit the rule. The cherry tree suggestion, therefore, I hastened to adopt. As I ran the clamor became terrific, and, fearing I might not secure a complete escape, I stopped and turned to face the music, advancing to meet them. They came with tails erect and every nerve on fire and surrounded me with a rush, circling in wild response to my fox hunter's halloo. It was some time before their baying diminished and the hair ceased to stand on their backs—a protest, perhaps, to the insult I had offered in attempting to escape and cut their newly-made acquaintance. Knowing of instances less opportune for making an attack which English foxhounds had seized, inflicting terrible purishment on their backs—a prometer, perhaps, to the insult I had offered in attempting to escape and cut their newly-made acquaintance. Knowing of instances less opportune for making an attack which English foxhounds had seized, inflicting terrible purishment on their own keepers, who had chanced to lose command over them; I felt the incident contained all the proof needed to establish the thorough mildness of temperament of these bloodhounds. Under the breeding of such enthusia perience what points were striven for in the production of this dog, would doubtless favor all such in the copies from his models, but his best portraits birth."

As a trailer, this hound will show enthusiasm over any quest he is put to. His speed and endurance have won him many laurels in the fox-hunting field, while his weight and strength raske him a formidable antagonist against the stag. His superiority in scent over other orceds is shown in his being able to hunt the "clean boot," i. e., the scent, of an individual through his boots. For this reason the term bloodhound has been applied to him. Although the dogs generally, show more marked character in the head, the bitches are generally endowed with stronger scent, and make the keenest finds. They show a predilection to hunt the clean boot at a very early age. The writer has some three-months-old pupples, which, on the are easily outclassed today by the living subject.

A great favorite in Landseer's kennel was the brood bltch Countess. Roused from a nap in a hay loft by the arrival of a carrigae in the court, she staggered to the window, and, recognizing Mr. Bell, slipped, in her delight, and fell, killing herself instantly. Landseer was at once sent for, and painted a last portrait of her asleep in death, and this picture is the most conspicuous of those he left in the gallery of the National Museum.

The portrait of Burgundy, bred by Edward Brough, is regarded as the most complete hound of which there is any record. This dog, when exhibited last year at the Crystal Palace show, London, secured beside special prizes and cups in his own class, the 50 guinea cup, offered to the best dog in the show of any breed.

The introduction of the St. Hubert to the country has been recent, W. L. Mitchell of Vermont, being the first importer. G. W. Glazier of Salem, has also a good kennel, owning the well-known Belus. The last importation from the kennels of Mr Brough was sent to Philadelphia, the brood bitch Northumberland, owned by H. R. Poore. Let us hope that many more may follow, and that this noble animal may obtain the recognition he deserves from the American fanciers and public. Years ago his ancestors were brought over by the cavaliers, who settled Maryland, the Virginas and the South, and from them sprang the Southern foxhound. These have been bred on the lines of speed, and many of the striking qualities of the present St. Hubert have been lost, especially of the majestic head properties.

Charles H. Innes of Boston, writing in the Dog Fancier, under date of February 20, 1892, speaks of the bloodhound as the "coming dog" in this country, and prophesies great popularity for him. He says:

"A well-bred English bloodhound is pre-eminently a gentleman's dog and is destined in the near future to hold a high place in public esteem. The bloodhound's nature is gentlehess, almost to timidity, but if either he or his master is attacked, his agile movements make him a most powerful opponent." Another authority remarks:

"To become thoroughly enamored of the breed, one well-bred bloodhound should be kept as a constant companion and inseparable friend. Under these circumstances the hound's individuality is developed and his capacity as a good comrade will be chiefly determined by the intelligence and fraternity of his human associate. He is essentially and

A twenty-minute run every day with the pups, with an opportunity to watch from some eminence, a tree or she tered fence, the efforts of the youngstigrs to find the quarry, adds exercise to diversion, and, coupling both with the lave of dog and the chase, offers recreation to the scortsman of the rarest and keenest sort. The runner should carry with him bits of meat with which to reward the finders, and with this as an incentive most trying labors are undergone by the plucky learners.

As keenness increases with practice, the difficulties should be multiplied, the trail being laid on flag stones, over water, along a fence. The most perplexing problem is to hold a trail that has been erased. This lesson should come in time and be made more and more severe by the number of crosses until individuality of scent may be distinguished. When the bloodhound has reached this degree of training his value as a detective is unique.

A late issue of the Forest and Stream states that the public authorities of Kansas City have just purchased a brace of bloodhounds which are said to possess sterling reputations as man trailers. As the care of the St. Hubert for so many generations has been delegated to the aristocracy of England, where he has served as a piece of artistic decoration for the estate, his training for practical purposes has been much neglected. With his reestablishment in popular favor, let this most practical and interesting recommendation be cultivated and preserved.
